

sounds of Steppenwolf are heard in the area

by Carolyn Gass

The Watres Armory, Scranton, was the scene of the heavy Steppenwolf gig Feb. 26. People from all over the area streamed in to sit or stand anywhere and everywhere, to patiently wait for the rock concert to begin.

The six members of the 8th Street Bridge set the pace and the mood for Steppenwolf's appearance. Their music was more of a head swayer than a body mover. About five years ago, Tony Golia, Bill Space, David Steve, Ed Arnone, Butch Mattei and Carl Belcastro got together, and more recently, added a new touch—the sound of Betsy Prokopchak. The group has played locally most of the five years and their music has become known throughout the area. Their sounds will grow along with their success.

The Armory was finally filled to capacity—three feet high heads swayed with the rhythm of Steppenwolf. The sounds, from acid rock motif of "The Pusher" to the lyrical "Snow Blind Friend," appealed to the almost motionless, spellbound audience. A few psyched people danced freely, ignoring everyone but themselves and the sound swelling in their heads.

Rocking the audience for only one timeless hour, the musicians tried to leave the stage, only to be grabbed, by members' clothing was torn, and thousands of dollars worth of equipment almost trampled, due to a few thoughtless people loving or hating the artists.

The attitudes of the artists were of anger and insult; intensified by people throwing paper and flashcubes while they were performing. The majority of the audience though, was peaceful and receptive. No hassle occurred and the future of more rock concerts heightened.

Fang Productions presented great sounds and hopefully will continue in their efforts to bring name groups to this area.

According to Dr. Charles C. Cole Jr., president of Wilson College, Chambersburg, the first gift toward the establishment of a new campus recreational center has been given by Mr. and Mrs. Raymon R. Hedden, Sweet Valley. The new Campus Center was recently approved by Wilson College's board of trustees, Mr. Hedden, owner of the Raymon R. Hedden and Company, Dallas, is a former trustee of the college and has had a long interest in the improvement of Wilson's social and recreational facilities.

Mrs. Hedden, the former Dorothy Turner, is an alumna of Wilson.

In announcing the Heddens' contribution of $25,000, one fourth of the estimated cost of the center, Dr. Cole said that the new facility will be ready for the opening in fall of the 1971-72 academic year.

ever before."

Mrs. Gregory remarks with a chuckle that she is "not a women's lib gal," and believes that "a woman's voice can be completely compatible rather than in competition with men's voices."

She considers herself "the kind of person who is vocal and gets involved," and her list of affiliations would appear to bear her out. She is currently president of the Back Mountain Woman's Republican Club and has served as an officer in the Women's Auxiliary of the Trucksville Volunteer Fire Company. She is a past Girl Scout leader, Den Mother, and Sunday School teacher and was formerly the editor of the Trucksville United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Gregory suggests that if she were to sum up the reasons for her candidacy in a single sentence, it would be "because I care; I care about the problems of the students and the school employes, and I also care about the struggle our taxpayers are having supporting the system."
