

United Fund to Launch Drive with Antique Cars

The Wyoming Valley United Fund will launch its 1971-72 fund drive Sept. 19, at 3 p.m., heralding the start of the Antique Car Parade, known as the United Fund "Big 50" Kickoff Caravan.

The parade will start from the Acme Store parking lot in Pittston, proceed south down Wyoming Avenue to the Carey Avenue bridge, thence east to the crossroads at Hanover Township, and north to Meyers High School, going east on Hanover Street, to South Main and proceeding to Public Square where there will be a program.

In charge of the event is Brig.

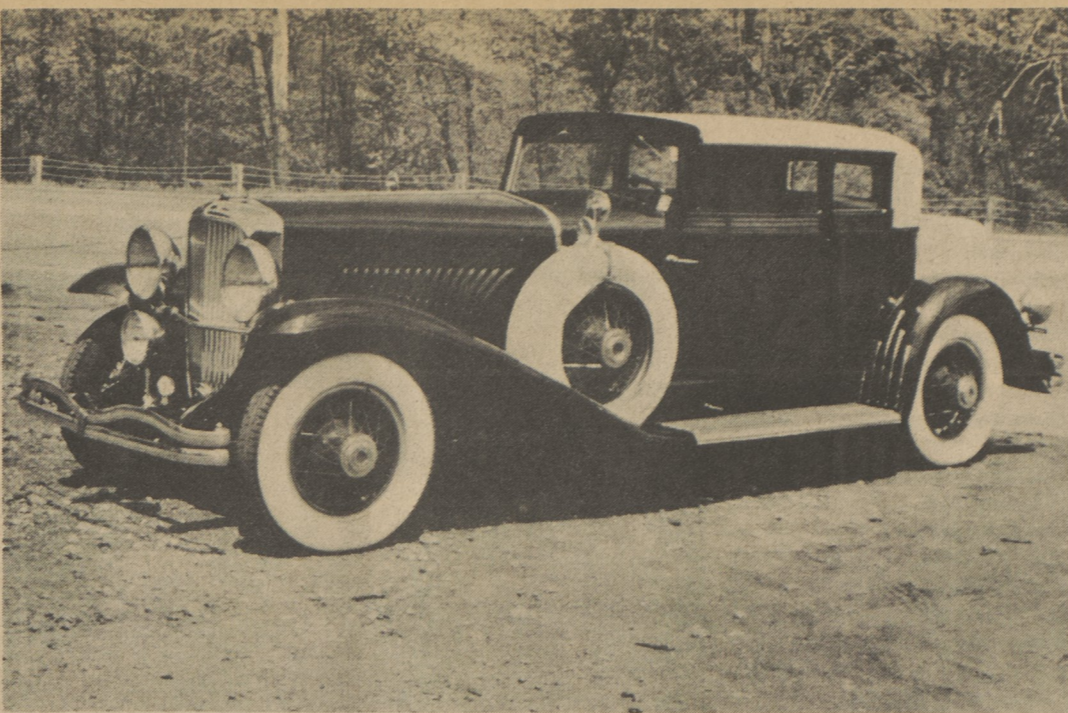

Gen. Corey Patton (Ret), Parade marshal is Bernard Boback, of the Northeastern Pennsylvania Region of the Antique Automobile Club of America, whose members will furnish cars for the parade. Other antique car owners who wish to participate are asked to call the public relations department of the United Fund.

There will be intermediate reviewing points where civic officials of various communities can review the parade. High school bands will be strategically located to provide music.

Stanford L. Weiss, general chairman, and Robert J. Leonardi, vice chairman of this year's Fund campaign will ride in the caravan as will Miss United Fund and her court. The parade will be covered by the communications media.

This year the United Fund is celebrating its 50th Anniversary of community service. The 37 member agencies of the United Fund provided needed services to more than 125,000 persons last year. The campaign goal, highest in the Fund's history is $1,503,000. Fair-share giving on the part of the citizens of Wyoming Valley will result in the reaching of this goal. Services are provided for all persons regardless of race, creed, national origin, or station in life.

Antique automobiles similar to this 1931 Duesenberg can be seen in the United Fund parade Sept. 19. Many of the vehicles are valued at thousands of dollars and are kept in pristine condition by their owners.

Lake-Lehman Teachers Travel Far and Wide During Summer

The summer months were a time for many of Lake-Lehman School District's elementary teachers to take trips and see sights of interest.

Canada's scenery and historical sites were of interest at various times to Maryann Blesner, Catherine Cortegeronne, Carol Warchal, and David Harris. Mr. Harris included the Thousand Islands in his tour.

The Mid-West and Far-West lured several teachers. Marjorie Davis made a trip to Mid-Western States. Yvonne Marshall's trip was to Colorado with stops enroute to see places of interest. Mildred Wilson made a circle tour of the West, which included Albuquerque, N.M.; Phoenix, Ariz.; and inland California—stopping at Yosemite, Lake Tahoe; Portland, Ore.; Seattle, Wash.; returning through Montana, North Dakota, Wisconsin and Michigan. Margaret Thomas traveled West to California, with stops at Grand Canyon, Yellowstone National Park and Disneyland. Miss Thomas' itinerary also included a visit to the New England States.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Toole made a five-week motor tour of the West. Places of interest were Badlands; Black Hills, S. D.; Rushmore; Yellowstone National Park; Teton National Park; Jackson Hole, Wyo; General Custer Memorial; Glacier National Park, Mont.; Mt.

Rainier, Wash.; Oregon and California coast route; San Francisco; Disneyland; Hollywood; Yosemite National Park; Las Vegas; Zion National Park; Grand Canyon; Painted Desert; Petrified Forest National Park, Ariz.

Five teachers made trips to Washington, D.C., with a number including other places of interest in their trip. Linda Baker, in addition to Washington and Baltimore, Md., went to Norwich and Groton Point, Conn. Washington, New York City, and Long Beach Island, N.J., were trips made by Hannah Culp. In their trips to Washington, both Mary Anne Shabelski and Jeanette Williams made visits to the various historical sites. Besides the Nation's Capitol, Lois Hardisky went to Gettysburg, and to Arlington and Williamsburg, Va.

Of special interest was Marjorie Cosgrove's trip to Chincoteague Island, Va., where she attended the annual Pony Penning Day and saw the Pony Swim. Also visited were Assateague National Wildlife Refuge; Ocean City and Salisbury, Md.

Charles C. James motored through some of the Southeastern States. Places of interest visited were Williamsburg, Luray, Charlottesville in Virginia; Cape Hatteras, N.C.; Myrtle Beach, S.C.; Athens, Ga.; Blue Ridge Parkway and the Great Smokey Mountains.

Maryann Yurko went to the Delaware Bay area. Joseph Martini was in New York City and on Long Island. Seaside Heights, N.J., and Richmond, Va.; were visited by Anita Michaels. Dorothy Nanstiel toured historical sites in Boston, Mass.

A detailed tour through the Pennsylvania Dutch Country was one of the highlights of Grace L. Martin's summer. During this particular trip, Mrs. Martin also went to Hershey; William Penn Museum; and the Museum at Chadds Ford. On a second trip she traveled to Massachusetts and Vermont.

Demi-Boots Please

For the Fall-Winter term of '71, the doughty demi-boot seems to be boyhood's big favorite. Though primarily styled with wide buckled monk-strap, there are also gored pull-on types and short-zippered demi-boots to win plaudits as pre-teen pleasers. When trim is used, it runs to perfs or stitching, with two-tone, two texture effects mainly found in dress-up demis.

Casual slip-ons and leather moccasins serve for both school and play hours. Sturdy leather boots—at levels higher than demi-boot height—are much in demand for those long hours out-of-doors in snow and cold weather.

University of North Carolina, Charlotte—A new College of Architecture, which will emphasize interdisciplinary problem-solving in the urban environment, will admit its first students.

Kansas State University—A presidential committee, composed of students, faculty members and top administrators, will meet bi-weekly with the university president to discuss problems of a university-wide nature.

University of California, Irvine—A new interdisciplinary program will provide opportunities for students to receive credit for work as interns in various social agencies, including law enforcement, justice and mental health.
