Lake-Lehman Graduate Weds Milford Langdon

Gate of Heaven Church, Dallas, was the setting recently for the marriage of Rita Catherine Niezgoda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Niezgoda, RD 2, Dallas, and Milford Joseph Langdon, RD 1, Dallas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milford Langdon, Parlin, N.J., and the late Margaret Casey Langdon, Wilkes-Barre.

The Rev. Stephen McGough performed the double ring ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of silk-faced peau and hand-clipped chantilly lace featuring a high empire A-line silhouette, with Victorian neckline and bishop sleeves. Her gown was completed with a detachable wateau train accented with repeated lace motifs. Her silk illusion veil was designed in a pearly Camelot and a long cathedral length with bouffant tiers. Her bouquet was of Mlle. Fleau flowers.

Linda Niezgoda, maid of honor for her sister, wore a formal length shrimp doeskin gown, featuring an empire waistline with an inserted short train, bishop sleeves and long cuffs. White lace interpieced with tangerine orange ribbon outlined the waistline and jeweled neckline. Her headpiece was a matching Dior bow with illusion. She carried a nosegay of orange carnations and white daisies with matching streamers.

Cecelia Hoyt, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Jane Niezgoda, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. Jean Niezgoda was junior bridesmaid for her sister; Barbara Matenus, cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

The attendants were attired in identical formal gowns of mint green and headpieces. They carried nosegays of mint green carnations and white daisies with streamers.

The flower girl wore a formal gown of mint green doeskin with an empire waistline and short puffed sleeves. Maize flowers were interpieced with white lace. Her headpiece was a matching bow and carried a small nosegay of green and white carnations and daisies with streamers.

Leonard Hoyt, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was best man. Richard Swoboda, cousin of the bride, and Harry Campbell were ushers.

The bride's mother selected an ensemble of mint green re-embroidered silk organza featuring long sleeves in the dress and a sleeveless coat. She wore matching accessories and a white orchid corsage.

The maternal grandmother, Catherine Kolodziej, Dallas, wore a beige dress re-embroidered in coffee brown and wore matching accessories. Her corsage was two beige cymbidium orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony, breakfast was served at the bride's parents' residence. An evening reception was held at the Continental Inn, after which the couple left for Canada.

The bride was graduated from Lake-Lehman High School and is employed at Nesbitt Hospital.

The bridegroom was graduated from G.A.R. High School and is employed at Payne Printery Inc., Dallas.

College Careers Outlined For Misericordia Freshmen

First, he told them, they would be trained in a profession. Second, they would be educated, provided with a liberal arts education which would expose them to all elements of culture and which would help them to know themselves. Finally, Dr. LaHood said, they would have their spiritual lives enriched.

Dr. LaHood's third point was later enlarged upon by the Rev. McAndrews when he told the students that the college would build upon the rich moral base already provided by their parents and would attempt to develop the students into "Christian humanists."

Following the Convocation, the students began a three-day orientation period designed to better acquaint them with the campus and with college life. Orientation ended with the beginning of classes Wednesday morning.

The total full-time enrollment at College Misericordia for 1971-72 is expected to exceed 850 students.

"Today marks the beginning of four exciting years for you and for us," Sister Miriam Teresa, RSM, president of College Misericordia, told incoming freshmen during the President's Convocation last Sunday afternoon. The convocation for the 225 new students and their parents officially marked the beginning of the 1971-72 academic year at the college.

Arriving on campus earlier in the day, Sunday, the new students and their parents attended the traditional convocation ceremonies in Walsh Auditorium during the afternoon. Sharing the podium with Sister Miriam Teresa, RSM, were Sister Mary Joel Magill, RSM, dean of women; the Rev. Donald A. McAndrews, chaplain of the college; and Dr. Marvin J. LaHood, academic dean.

In the primary address of the afternoon, Dr. LaHood outlined what the new students could expect at College Misericordia during the next four years.

September Is Canning Time In Wasser's Home Kitchen

"Larder" is an old fashioned word which suits the fully stocked freezer, and storage shelves in the William Wasser home at Lake Catalpa, Kunkle, quite nicely. Ann Wasser—who claims that she cans or freezes "anything that's edible"—has been keeping her family well nourished with healthful garden-fresh foods for nearly half a century.

In these efforts she has the willing help of her husband, Bill, whose vegetable garden each year produces an abundance of food for her canning and freezing projects. Bill, who is in his seventh decade and looks at least 20 years younger, modestly insists that his wife deserves most of the credit: "There's a lady that can cook anything—and good!" He points with pride to the rows of canned vegetables and fruit which line their storage shelves and to the well-stocked freezer, suggesting that the two areas are the family's "market."

"The fact is," laughs, Mrs. Wasser, "I think we could live for two years without going to the store for food!" Because they nearly always can and freeze more food than they need, they are generous in sharing their bounty with others—especially their two daughters, Lorraine Hawk and Jeanne Pieczynski, both Dallas residents.

Often, however, neither daughter needs the food prepared by Mom Wasser—both women have their own well-stocked larders, having learned the art of canning as young girls from their mother. Frequently the sisters get together with Mrs. Wasser at one of their homes and spend the day "canning up a storm," as Mrs. Wasser says.

Mrs. Wasser includes blueberries, fruit cocktail, pears, applesauce, apple butter, kosher dill pickles, red beets, carrots, mangoes, tomato juice and currant-raspberry jelly among the many foods she cans. Her jars of home-preserved foods—as well as her delicious baked goods—are eagerly sought after by persons who attend such fairs as the recent Summer Fiesta at Gate of Heaven Church, an event to which she contributed 20 jars of various jellies.

Fruit Cocktail

4 qts. cut up peaches
4 C. sugar
4 qts. cut up pears
3 C. sugar
1 lg. can pineapple chunks
Maraschino or Queen Anne cherries (for color)
Sprinkle 4 C. sugar over peaches and let form juice.
Do same with 3 C. sugar and pears. Do not add water.
Pack in one quart jars.

Process 10 minutes at five pound pressure.

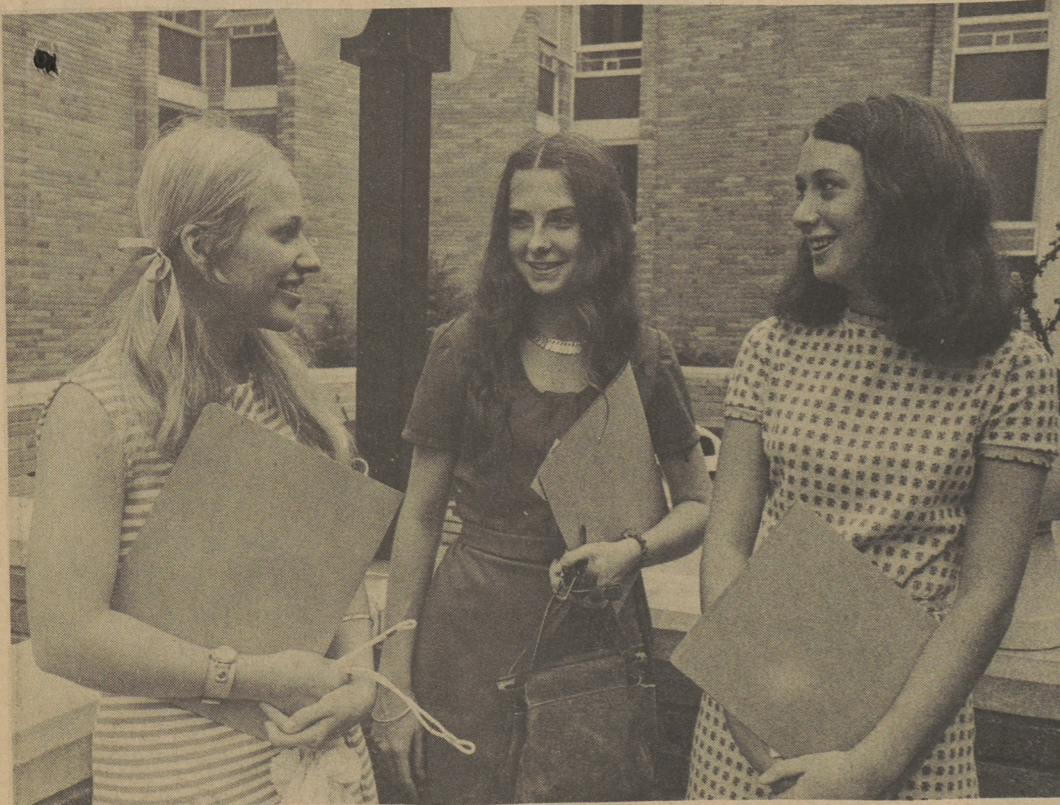

Add green grapes and banana slices when serving.

Banana Bread

1 t. salt
1 T. fresh lemon juice or reconstituted lemon juice
1 C. mashed bananas
1/2 C. walnuts (optional)
2 C. flour (scent)
1 t. baking soda
Cream shortening, sugar and salt; add lemon juice and bananas.
Sift flour and soda, add to creamed mixture.
Pour into greased and floured loaf pan (or into two greased and floured vegetable cans).
Place on cookie sheet in 350 oven and bake for 50 minutes.

Bread Pudding

4-5 slices raisin bread
2 C. scalded milk
1/2 C. sugar
3 beaten eggs
1 t. vanilla
pinch salt
Shredded coconut
Combine all ingredients except coconut in 1 1/2 qt. casserole dish; place in pan of hot water.
Sprinkle pudding with shredded coconut.
Bake 40 minutes in 375 degree oven.
