

Bald Mountain Trio is Enthusiastic New Group

The three young men sat in a semi-circle with musical instruments in their hands and practiced the same song over and over again. The Bald Mountain Trio was learning a new piece of music.

The trio, Brad Hochhalter, Jay Futch and Jay Miller, all seniors at Dallas High School, first banded together a month ago and have held numerous practice sessions at one or the other's home ever since.

Their first concert Oct. 28 was for the high school student body and was held in the school auditorium. The trio was enthusiastically received by their peers—thus encouraging them to continue.

"We want to do concerts and possibly provide dinner music at restaurants and clubs," Brad explains. "Our music is for listening—not dancing."

"We're available for parties," adds Jay Miller, echoed by Jay Futch's, "Yeah, we're available."

Already some dates for the group have been set-up, and they are working to get other engagements. They have done some advertising in a modest way—having mailed 100 cards to owners and masters of ceremonies at various area restaurants and entertainment spots.

The Bald Mountain Trio (from the Russian composer Moussorgsky's "Night on Bald Mountain") is composed of acoustical lead guitar, Jay Miller; 12-string rhythm guitar, Jay Futch; and oboe or tambourine by Brad Hochhalter.

The young musicians also sing. Miller is lead tenor; Hochhalter, tenor; Futch, second bass.

With their almost daily practice sessions they are enlarging their repertoire constantly. Among their favorite selections, to date, are: "Teach Your Children," "Ohio," "Marrakesh Express," "Rocky Racoon" and "Suite: Judy Blue Eyes."

Jay Miller, son Mr. and Mrs. Jack Miller, East Center Hill Road, Dallas, also does some composing. Two of his songs, "Friendship" and "Diver and the Porpoise" are among the trio's selections.

The young composer has played guitar for seven years. Bending forward over his instrument, he stresses that this is an acoustical guitar—not electrical. "We have no electric instruments. In a large auditorium, we use amplification, but this is the only way in which anything electrical is used."

Another instrument he can play is a baritone horn, and laughs when he also lists the Jews harp.

The other Jay is Jay Futch, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Futch, Orange Road, Kingston Township, who has played a 12-stringed guitar for four years. In addition to the oboe, Brad has been playing piano for seven years. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hochhalter, Marabee Avenue, Dallas.

Describing their music as moderate folk rock, the three musicians show their eagerness to entertain others—and in so doing—entertain themselves.

"We really have a good time playing together," they all agree.

R. Bomboy Awarded Journalism Fellowship

Robert P. Bomboy, 11 Shaver Ave., Shavertown, is among 10 Americans and a Filipino who have received Urban Journalism Fellowships from the University of Chicago.

Mr. Bomboy will participate in a six-month program of urban studies sponsored by the university's Center for Policy Study from Jan. 2 to June 10 next year.

Mr. Bomboy, who was selected from a field of more than 100 journalists, will receive full tuition and $4,600 in living expenses during the program, which is supported by money from private sources that include the Ford Foundation. He will take a leave of absence from his job as Assistant Sunday editor of the Scrantonian and Tribune newspapers in Scranton.

The university program offers intensive studies for journalists who wish to specialize in urban affairs. It is designed to improve the newsman's skills in analyzing, interpreting and reporting such subjects as city and regional planning, architecture, urban renewal, housing, zoning, transportation, pollution control, race relations, education and public health. Journalism Fellows work closely with university scholars in areas related to those subjects.

Mr. Bomboy, who holds a Master's degree from Columbia University's Graduate School of Journalism, was previously employed by Business Week Magazine and the New York Herald Tribune.

Harvey Dismisses Prowling Charge

A charge of loitering and prowling brought against William Sponseller of RD 2, Dallas, was dismissed by District Magistrate Leonard D. Harvey following a hearing Oct. 28. Two charges of disorderly conduct preferred by Sr. Marie Turnbach RSM and Charles Finn, special policeman, were upheld and Sponseller was fined $10 plus costs on each charge.

According to Officer Carl Miers, prosecutor, Sponseller was picked up on the campus of College Misericordia at approximately 6:40 a.m. after police had been apprised of his presence there by Sr. Turnbach. Sponseller, 24, indicated that he could not remember being there and Magistrate Harvey observed that the defendant had been "under the influence of something."

Magistrate Harvey explained that he was dismissing the loitering and prowling charge inasmuch as there was no evidence that the defendant had intended to commit any unlawful act.
