Hypnotist's Lecture Tonight at Wilkes

Dr. Franz J. Polgar, an expert in the fields of hypnotism, telepathy, and memory will present a lecture and demonstration program, "Miracles of the Mind," tonight at 8 p.m. as part of the Wilkes College Concert and Lecture Series held in the Dorothy Dickson Darte Center for the Performing Arts for the public.

Dr. Polgar has entertained audiences extensively throughout the United States performing amazing feats in thought transference; memory skills, exhibiting the photographic mind in a series of rapid fire tests; and optionally, power of suggestions with volunteer subjects from the audience.

Hypnotism demonstrations are for fun, not for cures, in Dr. Polgar's demonstrations. He takes photos of his volunteer subjects and amuses them after they wake up with candid shots of the funny poses they strike at his command. "But I never embarrass anyone," Dr. Polgar declares. "I make people think. Many people are ignorant about hypnosis but when they see it, when they witness it, they lose their superstitions."

Dr. Polgar was born in Hungary, where he studied at the University of Budapest and worked as a hypnotist with physicians. He came to the United States in 1933.

Television Programming Discussed at Trucksville

The public's interest in television programming was the topic discussed by a panel of experts at the November Trucksville Elementary School PTA. The panel included Jeff Grant, WVIA-TV 44; Ted Raub, WNEP-TV 16; and Jerry Gray, WBRE-TV 28. Panelists discussed the television medium, pointing out its great potential for education and entertainment. Each of the panelists discussed the pros and cons of present television programming methods, but all agreed that commercial television is airing the types of programs that most people want to watch.

The general consensus of the parents and panelists was that television has an extensive impact upon the viewer. The results of the television habit may be more pronounced in young viewers than in adults.

The panel's presentation and following discussion with parents provided an interesting and informative evening. Remarks from parents echoed their delight in the evening's program and their appreciation for the panel members participation. One parent asked, "I wonder why there aren't more parents here? I wonder why a program as good as this doesn't attract more parents?" The reply from the lady next to her was, "I don't know, I guess they'd just rather stay home and watch television."

The exchange of ideas between parents and panelists delved into the difference between programming for adults and children. The questions also asked about cartoons, commer-
