Knit Garments Need Special Laundry Care

A knit garment can shrink if dried too long at too high a temperature, cautions Ruth Ann Wilson, Extension clothing specialist at The Pennsylvania State University.

Knits will also shrink, wrinkle or fuzz if washed in hot water with too long a cycle, high agitation and fast spinning. Long tumbling in the dryer will also cause hard-to-remove wrinkles in knits.

Always wash and dry knits with caution, urges Mrs. Wilson. She says the easy care qualities of knits can never be accepted as "anything goes" for laundering.

Wash knits in warm water for about six minutes at medium to low agitation. Use the lowest spin to avoid wrinkles. If the machine has a setting for delicate fabrics or one specifically for knitted fabrics, be sure to use this.

Fasten hooks and close zippers on all garments to be washed at the same time with knits to prevent snagging. Turn knits inside out during laundering as a further help in preventing damage.

Mrs. Wilson cautions you not to dry lightweight synthetic fibers with heavier fabrics, such as cotton, because the longer drying time and hot temperature needed for heavier articles can cause overdrying and shrinkage of man-made fibers.

Dry clean knits every fifth or sixth cleaning for best shape retention.

Westmoreland PTA Reorganizes Group

The Parent Teacher Association of Westmoreland Elementary School held a reorganization meeting recently at the school.

Stanley McMinn presided. Mrs. Fred Mihal presented the following slate of officers, recommended by the nominating committee: president, Samuel Barbose; vice president, Mark Umphred; secretary, Marilyn Saul; treasurer, Ann Chester. Officers were elected, then installed by Mr. McMinn.

Walter Prokopcak, principal, said the school has always needed and will continue to need the understanding and support of its students' parents. He asked for more parent involvement.

"In this way," Mr. Prokopcak said, "there will be a better and stronger cooperative link between the home and the school in the education of the child; and both parents and the educators will be aware of each others' goals."
