Mosquito Program

The borough is faced with a sticky problem concerning acquisition of a new front end loader. The decision has already been made to purchase the new loader. Specifications have been acquired and are ready to be published for bids. The problem lies in the fact that most loaders stand 10 feet, 9 inches tall and the clearance on the doors at the municipal building where the machine will be housed is only nine feet. Floor to ceiling clearance in the building itself measures only 10 feet.

A workman at the meeting said it might be possible to get the manufacturer to reduce the head room in the cab. He said the cabs normally had more than sufficient head room and it could be cut down without any ill effects to the operator. But

Council took no definite action on the question and proceeded with other business.

'Puts One Over'

Council president John Olinick was at the meeting and said because the redevelopment authority had not gone through with the work they had scheduled for the area, the system had to be redesigned with a pitch that was not nearly as sharp as the original design. Problems of silting and debris clogging up the pipe can be eliminated, he said, by providing catch basins under the drains and keeping them clean.

Council will eventually reimburse the authority for the storm drain work.

The authority agreed to pay $2200 per year to help pay the salary of a borough maintenance man whose primary job would be to remain on call at all times in order to insure the screens at the pumping station do not fill up with debris and burn out the pump motors during heavy rains.

Anna Bellas told the authority Wyoming Sand and Stone had ruined her yard with their equipment and had not come back to fix it as they had promised to do.

She said she signed a paper that one of the workmen had given her to the effect that it was alright with her for the company to make an access road over her property. She did not get a copy of the paper.

Solicitor Piccone said the authority was powerless to do anything as she made her own

Re-assess

A bid from Nina Foundry for 100 manhole covers was tabled. The authority thought that $106.20 per cover and frame was too much at this time, because they are not in a position to spend that much money.

Tom Bagley, waste water treatment plant manager, was instructed to advertise for bids for lateral work. These bids will be opened at the July meeting. Specifications will be supplied by Roy Weston Environmental Engineers, DAMA representative.

Squabble

In summation, Mr. Banks noted that many developments in Jackson Township have grown and the property values have increased significantly despite their operation. He noted that while his company had been cited by the Department of Environmental Resources for air pollution, they are presently in conformance with all State and Federal regulatory laws and that they would continue their attempts to restore their property to its natural beauty by back-filling, planting of trees and other measures.

Atty. Aponek explained that the board has 45 days from that date in which to act upon this matter. Failure to approve or disapprove within this time period will constitute an issuance of American Asphalt's request. Both the taxpayers and American Asphalt have, within 30 days, of the board ruling, recourse to an appeal before the Court of Common Pleas in Luzerne County.

This might necessitate a specially built machine.

A decision on the problem will probably be made at the next council meeting.

Council decided when that problem is resolved they will send out flyers to all construction equipment manufacturers asking them to make a bid on the machine. Council feels that to simply advertise for bids in the newspapers is not sufficient guarantee they will not be worked into "a one bid situation."

The Dallas Area Municipal Authority has asked council to pave their road cuts and bill the authority. Council thought this was a good idea—they have this type of arrangement with utility companies at present. Council will stipulate that the agreement take in all maintenance of the cuts prior to paving. The fill used in the cuts prior to paving is thrown out by traffic and has to be replaced. The cost of replacing the fill will be included in the agreement.

Council agreed to allow the recreation committee to block off Ferndale Road from Luzerne Avenue to the first house at the discretion of the committee. Emergency vehicles will still be able to get through and the road will be blocked only when special activities are being held at the recreation area.

The recreation committee asked council to approve the scheduling of dances on Friday nights from 9 to 11 p.m. Council approved the request and noted the curfew allows young people to be out after curfew if they are going home from a scheduled activity.

The committee also asked council to look into the possibility of piping water from Mike McFadden's house to the recreation area. Council will research the request.

Council agreed to erect two "watch children" signs on Crescent Lane.

Council agreed to hire Patrolman James Tupper as a full time policeman. He has been on the force for six months and has performed his duties well, Chief Ray Titus said.

Council scheduled an adjourned meeting for June 25 to discuss errors and omissions insurance, Act 600 having to do with police pension and retirement and the mandatory police training bill.
