Backstage With Sylvia

There are people who live with zest and excitement, and whenever you see them and ask "What's new?" they always have something to tell you. Such a one is Florence Weir, and if I write about her frequently, it's because I'm fascinated by the interesting life Florence lives. (You too, are welcome to join us in this column. Tell us about your adventures.)

Recently, Florence organized and narrated a fashion show for Lazarus at the Paramount Theatre in conjunction with the premiere of "Mame" this version starring Lucille Ball. First off, the film was surprisingly good. I don't know how many times I've seen "Mame" or "Auntie Mame", or how many actresses I've seen in the starring role, but I've enjoyed every one of them.

Axiomatically, one assumes that the movie version will almost always be awful. This was just fine. Lucille Ball didn't do "Lucy".. and did manage to portray a very sensitive Mame, different from Roz Russell or Angela Lansbury. The little boy who played Patrick was a

The fashion show illustrated the Mame look, the Gatsby look, the Harlow look, and it was elegant. At last we're back to clothes that spell glamor.

The models in the show were Debbie Fabian, Denise Demko, Kachinskas, Pam Fenner, Linda Whalen, Mary Ann Hubick, Jan Morrash, Nancy Samuels, Bella Fiascki, Joanne Feddock, Wendy Weir, Joanne Castellino, Eileen Brislin. Jane Kluger, and Karen Passarella. All but two are from the Lazarus Teen Board, taught and trained by Florence.

Florence spent a week in New York attending all the big fall fashion shows given by the larger houses. While there she, her daughter Pixie, and Pixie's roommates, attended several plays and inadvertently on a Sunday night wandered into a political benefit performed by the great popular composers of our day. They were admitted as guests to a show where the cheapest ticket was $150!

High on the list of new ideas is the big coat. It's tenty, swingy, capey, wrapped, fur-trimmed, lots of flare and lots of room. Capes are big, with or without hoods. Coat lengths are longer, 43 to 50 inches in length. Fur trims are led by the long-haired furs, fox, raccoon, badger. Fabrics include fleeces, meltons, leathers, suedes, tweeds and solid wools and some are reversible with rainy day poplins inside. It's black velvet that swirls in for evening.

In dresses, the look is soft and feminine. There are more waistlines, prints, full sleeves with a Russian influence, blouson bodices, bateau and Vnecklines. The two-piece dress is back--an easy skirt under a belted tunic, the jacket dress, and the suit dress.

Late date dresses are elaborate, very soft looking, lots of motion in the skirt, and one interesting feature was lettuceleaf edges.

Pants are still "in", but definitely overshadowed for daytime the return of the skirt in all lengths. For the less daring, they just cover the knee. For the more adventuresome, there is a variety of longer lengths with a large number being shown to top the calf. (There's Gatsby and Mame!) Skirts are shown with the new wide-leg boots or with dark pantyhose such as rust, burgundy, brown, navy and offblack, and higher-heeled shoes.

It's in the evening that pants have their biggest impact...and that's the party pajamas.

"Unfortunately, our limited resources restrict the support we can give. The institutions chosen in the Northeast and elsewhere in the country reflect the venturesome vitality that is increasingly evident on many other campuses, a large number of which are equally deserving of recognition.'

Of the 177 colleges and universities screened for the grants announced today, 64 were visited by Foundation representatives and their programs reviewed. Several months ago, a Ford Foundation representative visited the campus at College Misericordia, meeting with staff, faculty, and administration members to review the college's current educational programs and future
