Hunter Safety Course Available Through Mail

Parents of children who will be securing their first hunting license for the 1974-75 hunting season will be interested to know that through the cooperative efforts of the Pennsylvania Game Commission and Penn State University, a correspondence course on hunter safety education has been developed.

The course was planned to aid and supplement the instruction the young hunter will receive when completing the mandatory hunter-safety program presently administered by the Pennsylvania Game Commission. Citizens of 18 of our states and four Canadian provinces having similar mandatory hunter-safety programs as Pennsylvania will find the course to be of value to their young and first-time hunters.

The course is broader than most literature on the subject of hunter-safety. The topics of hunter-land owner relations, survival, archery, hunting ethics, respect for land and wildlife and knowledge of sporting arms and ammunition are also discussed.

The seven lesson course may be secured by writing to Box 5,000, University Park, Pennsylvania 16802. Request Hunter Safety, and enclose your check in the amount of $14.00 payable to Penn State University. A course copy will be sent by return mail.

Baseball-Wrestling Apery At St. Andrew Festivities

Donkey baseball came to Camp St. Andrew, Tunkhannock, July 17.

Owned and operated by Shaw Brothers of Sayre, the donkeys lived up to their reputation and provided an afternoon of fun and enjoyment for the more than 800 campers, counselors, and staff members of Camp St. Andrew and "Project Hope" who attended the festivities.

The teams who participated in the "game" were made up of counselors and staff members who braved the abrupt starts and stops of the uncooperative animals. Appearing to enjoy the confusion and trepidation they were causing, the donkeys constantly astounded both the participants and the attending fans with their unexpected movements.

Another sporting event of the novelty variety took place at Camp St. Andrew on July 19. All-Star Wrestling made its debut in Casey Hall before a packed house of enthused, partisan fans. Spoofing some of the "big-name" wrestling "stars" of recent vintage, the camp staff provided an evening of amusement and laughter for the assembled spectators by their outlandish and oftentimes foolhardy tactics.

Leading off the night's card was the Siberian Crusher, Nikolai Pennovich (John Pennington) versus Lilly the Loser (Marty Lilly). The next match featured America's apple-pie boy, Handsome Sam (John Sempa) taking on the Mongolian Master of Manslaughter, Kung Fool (Gary Cangem), who was managed by the notorious Joe Alxano (Joe Sica).

In the championship tag-team match, the golden lad of wrestling, Sully Boy (Mike Sullivan), and his famous partner Sylvester Clod (Steve "Chet" Stavoy), faced the vile and treacherous Samson Brothers, featuring Gorgeous Grog (Ed Scarp) and Scrumptious Johnny (John McAllister), who were both at their worst for this match.

The grand finale of the evening pitted that granite hunk from the Stone Age, Cro-Magnon Man, (Bill Seifert) against the Masked Maniac (Rick Keating), master of foreign objects. Acting as ringside announcer for the night's activities was Steve "Howard Cosell" Yetter, who kept the fans on the edge of their seats with his witty and candid comments.

These events were just two of the many special features that are scheduled at Camp St. Andrew this summer for the enjoyment and amusement of the youngsters.

Camp St. Andrew is under the direction of Most Reverend J. Carroll McCormick, D.D., Bishop of Scranton, Rev. Joseph P. Kelly is camp director and John Hillferty and Tom Shoback, program directors.

Applications are still available by writing to Box G, Tunkhannock, Pa. 18657.
