Virginia Piatt Becomes Bride of Richard A. Ide

Virginia Mae Piatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Piatt, RD 1, Hunlock Creek, and Richard Allen Ide, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Ide, RD 4, Dallas, were recently married in the Maple Grove United Methodist Church at Pikes Creek.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the pastor of the church, the Rev. Daniel Davis. The wedding music was played by Susan Mason, Ambler, a friend of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a white formal gown of silk and chiffon and re-embroidered aleoneon lace. The all-lace Empire bodice featured a sheer English net V-yoke outlined with a pleated ruffle, a small stand up collar, and sheer lantern sleeves underlining with aleoneon lace. The softly draped skirt featured a built-in chapel length train. Her chapel length mantilla was mounted on a pearl beaded lace Camelot headpiece. She carried three white long stemmed roses.

Darlene Leggat was matron of honor. She was attired in a full length powder blue sleeveless gown with a fitted bodice and an A-line skirt accented by a white collar trimmed with lace. She carried a Colonial nosegay of daisies and carnations in pastel shades of blue, yellow and pink.

The bridesmaids, Colleen Honeywell and Nancy Piatt, sister of the bride, wore gowns identical in style to that of the matron of honor. Mrs. Honeywell wore yellow and Nancy wore pink. Their bouquets were also identical in style to that of the matron of honor with streamers to match the color of their gowns.

Gary Ide, brother of the groom, was the best man. Harold Honeywell and Thomas Piatt, brother of the bride, were the ushers. They wore shirts to co-ordinate with the colors of the bride's attendants' gowns.

The mother of the bride wore a beige chiffon gown with a bodice embroidered in gold lame thread with beige accessories and yellow roses with ribbon to match.

The mother of the groom was attired in a gown of raspberry pink chiffon with white accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses and ribbon also with white carnations.

An afternoon reception was held at the Castle Inn in Dallas after which the couple left for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and the Thousand Islands.

Following rehearsal, a party was given by the groom's parents at their home.

The bride was feted by variety shower given by her attendants at the Maple Grove Rosser Memorial Hall in July.

Mr. and Mrs. Ide are both graduates of Lake-Lehman High School.

Mrs. Ide, a graduate of Bloomsburg State College, was recently employed by the Lake-Lehman School District as an elementary teacher.

Mr. Ide is employed by Payne Printery in Dallas.

The couple will reside at RD 1, Box 341 A, Hunlock Creek.

Linda Ruth Woolbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Woolbert, 188 N. Main St., Shavertown, was married recently to Walter E. Flindt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Flindt, 488 Sweetbriar Drive, Warminster.

The bride and bridegroom wrote the ceremony which was performed in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Shavertown, by the Rev. F.W. Mook, Hammonton, N.J., a life-long friend of the bride.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore the gown worn by her grandmother, Margaret Beck Dilg when she was married to William Dilg, May 2, 1906. She wore clusters of baby's breath in her hair and a gold locket belonging to her grandmother. She carried an imported Italian natural basket filled with pink sensation roses, Baker fern, Pittosporum foliage and baby's breath.

Mrs. W. A. Anderson, Endicott, N.Y., sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. James White, Millersville, sister of the bride, and Carol Myers, Philadelphia. They wore identically styled gowns of the Gatsby era of flowered chiffon wrap-arounds over yellow French crepe A-line gowns, hats of natural Milan straw, and each carried a long-stemmed yellow rose arranged with baby's breath and matching streamers.

William Hostelly, Jenkintown, was best man. Ushers were Wilfred Anderson, Endicott, N.Y.; Dr. James White, Millersville, and William Ambler, Oreland.

The mother of the bride selected a strawberry lace gown with matching accessories and wore a corsage of gardenias.

Mrs. Flindt, mother of the bridegroom, wore a turquoise gown with white accessories, and a corsage of white orchids.

Mrs. Dilg, grandmother of the bride, wore a light blue embroidered dress with white accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. To the delight of guests at the reception, 93-year old Mrs. Dilg waltzed to "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" with the young bridegroom.

Immediately following the

ceremony, a cocktail and dinner party were held at the Irem Temple Country Club after which the couple left on a cruise of the southern coast.

Prior to the wedding, the bride was guest of honor at numerous showers given by Mrs. Eric Flindt and Mrs. Richard Moxey, Warminster; Mrs. William Hostelly and Mrs. William Ambler, Philadelphia; Mrs. Wilfred Anderson and Mrs. Alan Landis, Shavertown; Mrs. James White and Carol Myers, Millersville. Following rehearsal, the parents of the bridegroom entertained the bride party at a dinner at Irem Temple Country Club.
