

Margaret Dilg, Age 94

discern for she enjoys needlework and has crocheted many afghans which she has given as gifts for her daughters and granddaughters. One afghan is large enough to cover a huge double bed or queen size. Her patchwork quilts are coveted possessions of her granddaughters.

What would a good German home be without appel kuchen, homemade bread or Dutch kuchen? They are favorites in "Grandma Dilg's" kitchen and especially with her adored great grandsons. A piece of her appel kuchen or Dutch kuchen merits a big kiss from her grandsons when they visit.

Mrs. Dilg enjoys playing cards and many an evening is spent in a spirited game with friends who drop in. Despite a recent cataract operation, Grandma Dilg is able to see and well enough to win most times.

Although she was raised to speak, read, and write German, married in a German service, sang German in the choir and taught Sunday School in German, when the church made the transition from the German language to English, so did Grandma Dilg and her husband.

Ruth and Florence, however, never read, wrote or spoke German for their father insisted that they learn to use English grammar correctly before attempting to learn another language.

Since she was 14 years of age, dancing has been a love of her life and as mentioned earlier she still dances today. In fact, she is looking forward to her 95th anniversary and an evening of dancing with many long friends, young and old. Although her husband didn't dance, he took Margaret to dances so she could enjoy dancing with others. Many a two-step, five-step, Lancers (form of square dance), and waltz she danced while her husband sat by and watched. She took part in many Grand Marche at formal balls.

Grandma Dilg watches television and enjoys her favorites-Marcus Welby, General Hospital, and Hollywood Squares. She keeps abreast with current news by listening to the radio while eating her lunch.

She attends church whenever possible, but when she cannot make it she listens to a recording of the service at home.

Her 94th birthday was observed with a small family dinner including her family, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Malkemes; Helen Gallagher; Bea Fannick, New York, and an all-day open house.

Mrs. Dilg received dozens of floral tributes from friends and neighbors, hundreds of cards and many gifts from friends, neighbors, former area residents, and church members.

Grandma Dilg is a lively, vivacious person and loves people-she gets much enjoyment from life whether it be making figures from play-dough with her four-year old grandson, or reminiscing days gone by with old friends.

Chronologically, she may be 94, but in her heart and thinking she has never grown old. Her many friends wish her many happy years ahead.

Ruth Dilg Mack, daughter of Grandma Dilg, holds Neal Anderson, youngest member of the family, for his great-grandmother to admire. Grandma Dilg recently observed her 94th birthday.

William E. Baer Family Meet for 12th Reunion

The 12th annual reunion of the William Edward Baer family was held Labor Day at the Idetown home of Pearl and Gilbert Ide.

The meeting was conducted by family president Ernest Baer. A prayer was given by Gilbert Ide.

Officers elected for the coming year were Ernest Baer, president; Donald Boice, vice-president; Mildred Thomas, secretary; and Doris Meadway, treasurer. Dean and Patsy Long were named chairmen of games and prizes. Geraldine Baer was named the special gift chairman. Donna Walker is to bring special gifts for next year. The group voted to hold the reunion at the same place Labor Day of 1975.

Announcements were made of the following marriages: Nancy Booth to Robert Jones, Sept. 8, 1973; David Booth to Jayne Bonning, Nov. 24, 1973; Irene Booth to Carl Hess, Dec. 15, 1973; Susan Boice to Stanley Hathaway, May 25, 1974; Gary Booth to Donna Stemrich, June 22, 1974. The one death reported was Lana Audrey Booth, June 16, 1974.

No births were reported. Gifts were presented to the following: Patsy Long, Nancy Johnson, Lois Hughes, Galen Walker, Sally Yurksis, Ernest Baer, Timmy Wolfe, Lawrence Wolfe and Bob Wolfe.

Out of state relatives arrived by way of New York and Maryland.

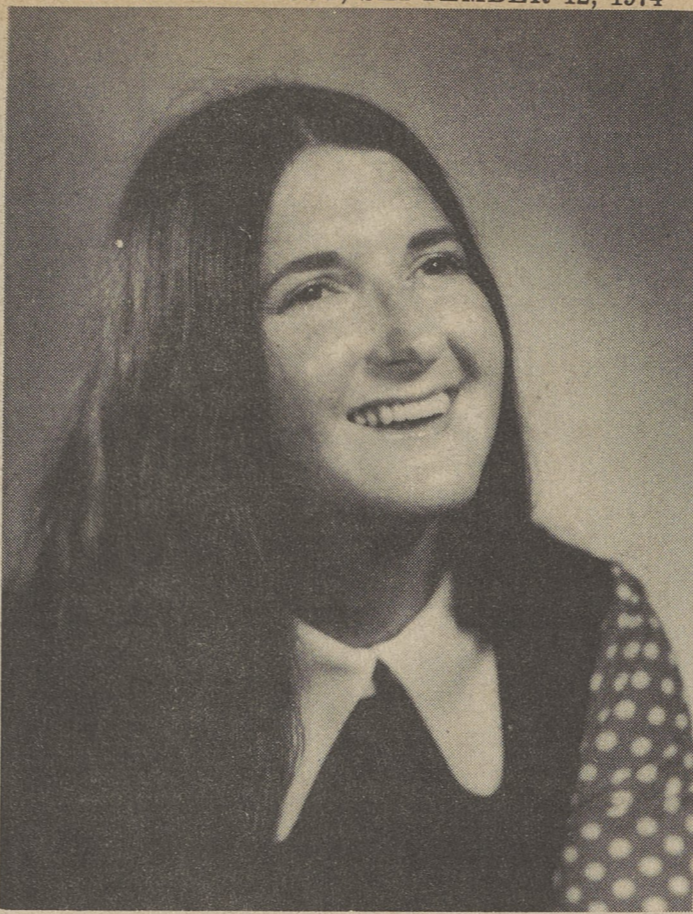

Area Campers Enjoy Vacation

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hunter and sons Bret and Troy, 21 Davenport St., Dallas, and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Glowoch, Atherholt Drive, Bunker Hill spent the last week in August vacationing in Watkins Glen, N.Y.

While there, the families camped at a KOA camp ground and visited the Great Western Winery in Hammondsport N.Y. Tours of the Glenn Curtiss Museum and Corning Glass Center were also enjoyed by the campers.

The families walked the Walkins Glen Gorge and enjoyed a scenic ride on a boat touring Seneca Lake. The group returned Labor Day weekend and completed their vacation at Camp Onawanda in Tunkhannock.

Cynthia Ann Konsavage Eisenberg

Cynthia Ann Eisenberg Passes CPA Examination

Cynthia Ann Eisenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Konsavage of Haddonfield Hills, Dallas took the Certified Public Accountant examination in May for her first time and just received notification that she has passed all four parts. This is an honor that few receive as less than 5 percent of all applicants for the examination pass in their first sitting. The happy results are the culmination of three years of night study at Golden Gate University and full time employment as a tax accountant with the C.P.A. firm of Hood and Strong in San Francisco, Calif.

Cynthia plans to continue her profession as a corporate taxation specialist with Hood and Strong while also completing the requirements for her masters degree in taxation at Golden Gate University. Golden Gate University is one of the few schools in the country to offer such an advanced degree.

Cynthia is a graduate of Colorado Women's College of Denver, Col. Previously, she attended Dallas Senior High School. Her residence in San Francisco was established in 1970, shortly after her marriage to Harry Eisenberg of Fort Lee, N.J.

Cynthia's father, John G. Konsavage, is executive vice-president of Booker Brothers Inc., an investment brokerage house in Wilkes-Barre. Mr. and Mrs. Konsavage plan to visit Cynthia in late October to help her celebrate and possibly get some tax tips at the same time.
