Township septic tank installation fee raised

Dallas Township supervisors voted Monday night to raise from $25 to $100 the fee for the inspection required to grant septic tank installation.

The fee change came on a suggestion from newly-licensed sewage inspector Leonard Kozik at the supervisor's regular May meeting.

Kozik stated that he recommended the fee hike based on new Department of Environmental Resources specifications requiring a back hoe and percolator test, along with their approval of forms before permits can be granted.

In other action at the meeting, Dick Williams and Francis Stucker brought before the supervisors, a third request for the take over of Davenport Street, Parrish Street and Medford Street in Parrish Heights.

Thomas Geffert and Andrew Gordo, Parrish Heights residents, also attended the meeting to voice opposition to the take over. Both Geffert and Gordo cited the invasion of their privacy as the reason for their opposition. They maintained that if the roads in the area were improved, traffic and increasing speed on the road would prove both hazardous and bothersome.

Williams and Stucker based their desire for the takeover in what they said they saw as a need for improving the quality of the road and to allow the township to be responsible for snow removal.

The supervisors advised the four Parrish Heights residents that Solicitor Frank Townend would draw up a petition, with spaces for all residents whose property touched the proposed road and u-turn. The residents could circulate the petition and sign or not sign.

Townend explained that it was not necessary that all residents sign the petition, but added the supervisors would probably work on an area were all the residents requested their help, rather than an area under dispute.

Phil Walter, chairman of the supervisors, stated that he would rather see a unanimous request for a road takeover than a majority request. Walter said he did not feel the supervisors or the township should be responsible to pay someone for the right of way, an action which might be necessary if all residents with property access to the road did not sign off.

The supervisors finally decided to have the petition drawn up by their solicitor and allow the residents to decide. If the take over is granted it will be for "a good dirt road," with a U-turn.

Announcement was also made at the meeting that a decision had not been reached as of the meeting date of the supervisors two court cases. The two cases were heard last month in the Luzerne County courts by Judge Richard Bigelow. One involves the supervisors "furlough" of two police officers and the second is a request by a taxpayer, Ted Krohn, to have the list of delinquent sewer payments in the township made a part of the public record.

Krohn is also the plaintiff's attorney in the case of the two "furloughed" police officers, James Gruver and Russell Banta.

Senior Citizen

The Senior Citizen Center, will have an elders council meeting at 2 on May 12. It is important for all council members to be present or to inform the center director ahead of time if one cannot come. This is important so an alternate can substitute if necessary.

On May 13, the stained glass class will meet. They are asked to bring the glass article they would like to cover. There will be articles at the center to work on for the craft sale also.

There are still reservations available for the prom to be held May 16 at Genetti Hotel. This dinner dance is in observance of Senior Citizen Month and is the only activity that involves all of the Multi-purpose Centers in Luzerne and Wyoming Counties. The cost is $6.50.

The trip to the Asa Packer Mansion on May 21 leaves the A&P parking lot at 1 p.m. After touring the mansion which is a real treat especially for antique lovers, the group will proceed to Tomoqua where they will enjoy dinner at Libbey's.

The center is in need of volunteer drivers to furnish transportation for some of our members who do not drive and do not have access to transportation. Anyone willing to help out in this manner please call the Center 675-2179.
