Needlework, meal planning rank high with Betty Challis

Needle work and meal planning rank high among the interests of Betty Challis, charming owner of the new yarn shop on Lake Street, Dallas.

Her interest in needlework, in fact, led to her decision to open The Nuthatch last March, where she is very much at home among the wide line of crewel, needlepoint and yarn kits and items.

Visitors always find her hands busy making a sweater, quilt, afghan or a needlepoint picture for one of her daughters, grandchildren, or a close friend. Her shop and her busy hands have also been tremendous therapy in helping her overcome the recent loss of her daughter, Linda, victim of an automobile accident.

Betty and her husband, Evan, have been spending their summers at Harveys Lake for the past 25 years and last October moved there year-round. Presently, they are remodeling both the inside and outside to complement her Early American furnishings some of which have been in Betty's family for years. Evan is employed by Gorham Silver Co., and as their representative covers the Eastern territory of Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and District of Columbia.

Betty's interest in needlework developed early when her mother insisted she keep her hands busy. Her excellence in the kitchen is attributed to her Aunt Margaret's persistence that she learn how to follow a recipe as well as experiment with different and tempting dishes.

The Challis' had four children, and needless to say, summers at the Lake meant many guests and Betty often served as many as 25 or 30 at one time, most often her son's football teammates.

The resort living and schedule of activities meant easy and light menus. Saturday picnics were popular with the family and many weekends they traveled to the Taft School in Connecticut where son, Don, was a student, their well-filled picnic basket always with them.

Although their children are married, Betty and Evan still enjoy entertaining and she has collected a host of hot weather menus which are both refreshing and filling. She enjoys preparing for a crowd and finds it a challenge to find menus which appeal to everyone.

In the little bit of leisure time they have, the Challis enjoy searching out new restaurants and trying new dishes.

Betty agreed to share some of her favorite warm weather menus with our Post readers. A few are listed below.

Back Mountain Jay-c-ettes plan for library auction

The current season is proving to be bustling with activity for the newly formed Back Mountain Jay-C-ettes.

Several members and their husbands attended the Chase Institute Jaycees award banquet honoring outstanding members of that group. In attendance from the Back Mountain Jaycees and Jay-C-ettes were Lois and Jeff Townsend, Danette and Bob Kelley, and Charlotte and Jeff Farley.

The Jay-C-ettes also lent a hand last Saturday at the Folks Art Festival sponsored by the Back Mountain Cultural Center. The work schedule for the Jay-C-ettes was arranged by Danette Kelley.

The Jay-C-ettes are currently soliciting from area residents no-longer-needed items to be donated to the Back Mountain Library Auction held in July. A meeting of the solicitation committee was held May 28 at the home of its chairman, Jessica Morgan.

Members will be distributing bulletins containing information pertaining to library auction donations. Anyone who would like to know "what, where, and when articles may be donated to the auction, or who would like to handle the soliciting for their neighborhood, may look for these bulletins at area businesses, or call 675-4328.

The Jay-C-ettes are also busy making lovely articles to be sold at their craft booth at the library auction. The craft committee under the direction of Danette Kelley and Deborah Ruckno, met Monday night at Rosemary Patterson's to complete many of its projects. All proceeds from the sale of these items will be contributed to the library. Any person or group interested in donating crafts or baked goods may call 675-5670.

The next regular meeting of the Back Mountain Jay-C-ettes is scheduled for June 9, at 8 p.m. and an invitation has been extended to the Wilkes-Barre Jay-C-ettes to attend.
