Treaters save home

The Kenneth Hunter home, 21 Davenport St., Dallas, was saved from possible disaster Halloween night by two trick or treaters, hobo Joe Noon and his sister Debbie.

A Halloween display on their front porch caught fire unknown to the Hunters. The two Noon youngsters spotted the fire and warned Mrs. Hunter. Through the alertness and thoughtfulness of the Noon youngsters, Ken Hunter and Andy Glowach, a guest, were able to put out the fire with a fire extinguisher limiting the damage to charred siding and a damaged rug.

Mrs. Hunter expressed her appreciation to the Noon children and stated that she felt much worse damage would have occurred before the fire would have been discovered by the Hunters.

Trudy Connor on PSU list

Trudy R. Connor, Mountainview Drive, Dallas, was one of nearly 1,100 undergraduates qualified for the dean's list at the Pennsylvania State University for the summer term, which ended in August. Miss Connor attained 36 of a possible 40 cumulative average.

Bicentennial booklet

Can you name two of the nine Pennsylvanians who signed the Declaration of Independence? What State did John Hancock represent? Who was Button Gwinnett? The answers to these and many more questions about the signers of the Declaration of Independence can be found in a booklet available free of charge from College Misericordia, an official bicentennial college.

Misericordia is making available a small booklet that provides interesting details on the signers of one of America's most important documents. Each signer is listed by state, birthdates and dates of death are noted, and the figure's involvement in the revolution is explained.

The booklet is available, without charge, by writing to Public Relations Office, College Misericordia, Dallas, Pa. 18612.

Hunting course offered

"Safe and Responsible Hunting," a correspondence course from The Pennsylvania State University, stresses hunter safety for both new and experienced hunters. Developed cooperatively by the Pennsylvania Game Commission and Penn State, the course discusses hunting ethics, respect for land and wildlife, the hunter's responsibility, survival, knowledge of sporting arms and ammunition, and a guide to marksmanship.

The course is intended for hunters who want to check themselves for safety practices. Hunter safety instructors will find the course valuable because of its treatment of hunting ethics, marksmanship, and survival.

To get a copy of the seven-lesson course, send $1 to Safe and Responsible Hunting, Box 5000, University Park, Pa. 16802. Make check or money order payable to Penn State.

Airman Hules Cornerstone to be placed

The placing of cornerstone, containing a metal box of timely items, will be one of the highlights of the 13th annual Parents' Day to be held on Saturday, Nov. 1, at Wilkes College. A full day's program has been planned by the committee comprised mostly of the students themselves.

USDA offers soil, water guides

The USDA Soil Conservation Service, assisting county conservation districts, can provide technical help in planning for surface water control and soil erosion protection. According to District Conservationist O. Gene Thrasher, the Soil Conservation Service assisted 21 municipalities in Luzerne County during the past year in resolving problems of proper land use. Much remains to be done in properly managing our soil and water resources. For more information, contact the local USDA Soil Conservation Service office located at Federal Building, Dallas, Pa.
