Six Dallas students take part in state chorus

Six Dallas Senior High School Students took part in the recent Region II State Chorus at Blue Ridge High School, New Milford. Kate Godwin, Debra Thompson, James Balmer, Scott Davis, Thomas MacAvoy and Eugene Fiorini participated in the chorus which included students from the New York border to Maryland, New Jersey and Milton.

David Dick, assistant professor of music at Mansfield State College, was conductor. Host director was John Battisti of Blue Ridge.

The Dallas students were originally selected for district chorus where they auditioned for performance with the regional chorus. While singing with the regional chorus, they auditioned for the all-state chorus in Pittsburgh during 1977.

James Balmer, who also represented Dallas at Hershey in the State's Bicentennial Chorus, placed second in the tenor I group in the chorus.

Scott Sherwood, junior at Lake-Lehman High School, and son of Mrs. Robert F. Sherwood, Dallas Choral director, placed first.

Balmer is a senior and will not be eligible to participate next year so Eugene Fiorini, who ranked third, will qualify.

The 160 students were hosted by residents in the New Milford, Great Bend, Hallstead, Montrose, a Susquehanna area.
