DRAW, PLEASE--Tara Noffke, Robert Sowga and Matthew Jones, all high bidders at the children's auction draw from the hat for the right to buy the item.

NOT THAT DADDY--Kerry Freeman's daughter turns up her nose at the item being auctioned off at the Children's Auction of the Back Mountain Memorial Library Auction on Saturday morning. She was willing to wait for another item to come up before bidding. Freeman was chairman of this year's auction.

DELIVERY MEN--Marty Barry and his dad, Francis, delivered frosting for the fresh baked doughnuts and new goods items during the auction on Saturday.

GOING, GOING--Joann Freeman, wife of the auction chairman, and Rena Rothchild, auction co-chairman, watch the bidding at the Back Mountain Memorial Library Auction last weekend.

PEOPLE, PEOPLE EVERYWHERE--Hot, humid weather did not keep the crowds away from the auction over the weekend as each day found the grounds crowded with Back Mountain residents, friends, and former residents back for the Library Auction.

DO I HEAR?--Terry Aaron and Clarke Bittner wait for another bid as they auction off an Alexander Smith American Heritage wall rug.
