Marion Williams & little people

Today's working mother needs a professional day care center that will provide competent care for her child by qualified personnel. Dallas resident Marion Williams, director of education and kindergarten teacher at Little People Day Care School.

Marion began her career in early childhood education when she became a day-care mother taking care of children of working mothers in her home. Following seven years of home day-care, Marion decided to return to college to obtain her degree under the Careers for Children program. While attending college, Marion taught pre-school classes for the Back Mountain Cultural Center. A graduate of College Misericordia, she holds a bachelor of science degree in elementary education and early childhood development.

Interfaith tea set by council

Plans have been completed for the 13th annual Interfaith program and Tea sponsored by Church Women United of the Wyoming Valley Council of Churches, Northeast Luzerne and West Luzerne Deaneries of the Diocesan Council of Catholic Women, and the Sisterhoods of Temple B'nai Brith and Temple Israel.

This year's event will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 20 at the Church of Christ Uniting, Market Street, Kingston at 1:30 p.m. The program theme will be "Children in Need. Whose children?"

A typical day at the school goes something like this. Students arrive between 6:30 and 9 a.m. with breakfast being served to those who request it. From 9 until 11:30 the structured educational program including reading and math readiness programs, arts and crafts and storytime is held for 3 to 5 years olds. A hot lunch is served at noon. Following lunch, students see a movie or participate in a music program, play either indoors or outdoors, and have a rest period. Snacks are provided both in the morning and afternoon. The school closes at 6 p.m.

According to Marion, field trips are an interesting part of the program. Recently students traveled to the United Penn Bank to open savings accounts. Periodically, they visit the Leader Nursing Home. At Christmas time the children sang carols and passed out wreaths to guests at the nursing home.

They have visited the fire hall and the Carvel Ice Cream store. Future field trips include a trip to the post office and a tour of General Hospital. Marion has arranged to take the kindergarten class to the Hoyt Library once a week. The school has an organized PTA which earns money to provide students with Christmas Party, Easter Egg Hunt and various other programs and field trips. Although Marion has not had much time to coordinate it, a summer program for children up to eight years old is being planned. This program will feature planned activities and swimming.

The Williams family lives on Norton Avenue in Dallas. Marion's husband, George, is an employee of UGI. Three children complete the Williams household. Amy, a sixth grader at the Dallas Intermediate School, is 11 years old, eight year old Rusty, a third grade student and six year old Jeff who is in first grade, attend Dallas Borough Elementary School.

Marion is a member of the board of the Back Mountain Cultural Center and serves as education chairman for that organization. She is a member of the Pastoral Parish Relations Committee of the Dallas United Methodist Church. Marion and George are members of the Church's Couple Club. Amy is a member of the choir.

Prior to returning to college last summer, George was active in a number of community and church organizations. He still has time to maintain membership in the Back Mountain Kiwanis Club, the Shrine, and is a member of Dallas Borough's Recreation Committee.

The Williams enjoy camping, hiking and being outdoors. A fisherman who ties his own flies, George is also an avid hunter. He is coach of the Pirates Team in the Little League. Rusty is a member of the Little League. Amy is a cheerleader for mini-football. Marion is especially fond of swimming so during the summer she and her family spend quite a bit of time at the Country Club pool.

Marion finds doing needlecraft of any kind interesting. She enjoys sewing, knitting and will read any type of book.

Obviously, spending time with young children is very appealing to Marion. If you are a working mother who is looking for a day care center for your child, contact Marion Williams. She'll be happy to discuss your child's needs with you.

Torr joins Dallas police

Jeremy Torr has been added to the Dallas Township Police Department. He is the first CETA employee hired by the supervisors.

Patrolman Torr was sworn in by Magistrate Earl Gregory and began his duties in mid-January. He is working an overlapping shift with two seasoned patrolmen in order to gain experience.

A 1969 graduate of Dallas High School, Torr attended Luzerne County Community College and then went from the Navy Reserves into the regular Navy. He was a hospital corpsman during his tour of duty. His discharge came through in December, 1978 and when he arrived at his New Goss Manor home he applied for the position of patrolman.

Torr is the second patrolman to be hired by the township within a month. Patrolman Clark Van Orden is presently attending a 12-week course at the Northeast Training Academy for policemen. He is not a CETA employee but was hired to replace James Kelly who resigned in October.

The newest patrolman in Dallas Township will attend his 12-week course at the academy beginning in April.

Torr is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Torr with whom he resides.
