

OAK HILL

'Size 5'

by Bridgette Correale

After seeing this weather, I guess the Espens, Emil and Millie, feel they returned home after spending the winter in Florida, a little too soon. Who would have expected all this snow!

Sorry to learn that Karen Batka is a medical patient at Nesbitt Memorial Hospital. Her neighbors, friends, classmates at Lake-Lehman High and crew at Mark II, all wish her a speedy recovery.

Belated birthday greetings to Julie Crochet whose 10th birthday was April 4 and to Betsy Moosic, her 12th birthday April 4.

The Annetas, Mike, Marie, Rosemary, Mike, Jr. and Lenny, enjoyed a weekend in New Jersey where they visited friends and relatives. Their dog, Fred, was a house guest at the Corrales (you've heard me talk about them before). All house guests should be so easy to entertain—no special menus, no extra bed to make, no wondering if he will be comfortable. Like to send this article to all friends and relatives living out of state, maybe they'll get the message, "You stay home—send your dog!"

Birthday 'hellos' to April Petrosky who will celebrate her 11th birthday April 15; Mike Rempliewicz and Bernadette Oley, April 13.

The Clearys traveled to Waverly, N.Y. to share their Palm Sunday dinner with relatives.

The circus is in town and everyone is busy securing tickets especially Cub Scout Pack 232. The boys and their leaders will attend Monday, April 16. Cub Scouts are asked to be at Gate of Heaven school yard by 5:45 p.m.

Last week Back Mountain's own Karen Passarella Bobeck, Mrs. Pennsylvania, represented our State in the 1979 Mrs. America Pageant. Our congratulations to Karen for making us so proud as she paraded on the stage of the Las Vegas Hilton Hotel.

Her beauty and poise placed Karen in the top 10 runners-up with the final decision going to Mrs. New Jersey.

Enjoying the weekend at the Osbornes were the Johnsons, former neighbors, now residing in the suburbs of Pittsburgh. The Johnsons along with many other neighbors, attended the wedding of Miss Bellas, daughter of Al and Marie Bellas, to Mr. Williams.

Yesterday, which was Saturday, cause today is Sunday, (got it? O.K.) I reluctantly went Easter shopping with and for No. one daughter, Adele. Anyone who has a daughter that is 12, looks like she's 17 and acts 21, knows what I mean when I say, "reluctantly."

The specialty shoppes that helped me keep my sanity for 10-11 years no longer can satisfy Adele's sophisticated taste. Size 14, which is supposed to be her size according to Dr. Spock, looks kiddish on her. So what's a mother to do??? (Vin suggested sewing, but took it back when he saw his sock supply. Holes—in the garbage!)

After two hours of a long puss and wanting to bang my head against any wall in the Mall, I thought of trying the junior sizes. (All you women who are built like me, tall, slender, very little poundage, know that the Mall may be convenient, but it's for skinny people!)

So getting back to junior sizes, I found the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, Adele can wear a size 5 and did I enjoy myself after that. Just imagine a saleswoman coming over and asking, "What size are you looking for?" "Size 5". Thrilling!

When I mentioned my excitement to Vin he said, "Our Adele size 5 wow! I never remember you size 5." What every woman wants to hear! But I fixed him good. Sunday is usually a 10 course meal at our house, well today I prepared a hearty breakfast for the children while Vin caught up on much needed sleep, so his breakfast was no-show. For lunch I tossed a salad for everyone and tonight I cancelled dinner! There's a lot more than words Vin wants to eat!

Happy Easter and may you all break bread with people you love. Traveling? Drive carefully and return safe. Is it necessary to remind you to leave your snow tires on? At least until July 4???

Nesbitt program seeks volunteers

Nesbitt Memorial Hospital, a 189-bed acute care full-service hospital located at 562 Wyoming Avenue, Kingston, has invited all interested community residents to join the hospital's Volunteer Service Program.

Volunteers will be able to participate in the following interesting hospital services: assisting with in-hospital transportation of patients, assisting with patient comfort on nursing stations, assisting in departments such as laboratory, radiology and physical therapy and coordinating in-hospital courier system. Other volunteer services will be identified to meet the needs of patients and interest of volunteers. New volunteers will be eligible to join the Nesbitt Memorial Hospital volunteer organization with the hours of volunteer assistance to be rewarded with service awards. A volunteer orientation meeting is scheduled on Tuesday, April 17, 10 a.m. or Wednesday, April 18, 2 p.m. in the Nesbitt Medical Arts Bldg., Auditorium, 534

Wyoming Avenue, Kingston. On this day, volunteers will meet the Administrator, Director of Nursing and then receive a tour of the hospital. Refreshments will be served. For further information, please contact Jo Stern, Director of Public Relations, 288-1411, ext. 276.

Children's Museum celebrates spring

The Children's Museum of Northeastern Pennsylvania is celebrating Spring. Planned are four special Saturday workshops that are as bright and exciting as the season's sunshine.

May 12th, will give children the opportunity to create their own billboards to be displayed in the local buses. The museum will supply all materials. Just bring your talent! All workshops are free with admissions. The Children's Museum is located at Market and Maple Streets, Kingston. Hours of operation are Saturday and Sunday 1-4 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday 2-5, and Thursday morning 10-Noon.

Children's museum offers cooking for children

The Children's Museum wants children to feel good about baking, kitchen safety, and the why's of cooking. Homemade cookies, quickie quick breads and scrumptious bread will be the basics behind "Baking Better Batters". Beginning April 29, the museum will be running a three-week workshop. The course will be taught by David Mermelstein of Wilkes-Barre. The Sunday afternoon hands-on workshop will be held from 1-4 p.m. in Wilkes-Barre. The workshop will show children how to measure and weigh ingredients; how to work safely and with cleanliness in the kitchen; what makes up a recipe, and what ingredients can be creatively altered in a recipe. Each week David will work in one area of baking: cookies, quick breads, and yeast bread baking. Mermelstein is an experienced baker and teacher who is presently working at Paul Rozen's Continental Cafe in the Showcase. All of the 10 children who participate will be actively involved in the cooking. Children must be at least seven years of age. The course fee is $19. For registration contact The Children's Museum, 288-3107.

Now you can buy your heat and hot water at a nighttime discount.

Now you can buy electricity at lower cost. And the time you use electricity makes all the difference. Now with Electric Thermal Storage Units (ETS), there's a way you can use lower-cost, off-peak electricity. Using ETS equipment—a 120-gallon storage-type water heater or a storage-type home heating unit—much of the electricity you need can be bought at night. At lower rates. Normally, more than 75% of household energy use is for heating and water heating. The remainder is for lighting and for appliances that are normally used during waking hours. To obtain such benefits, you simply enter into an optional RTU Rate (Residential Time of Use) contract with UGI. Then, during the night, low cost electricity will charge the units. In the morning, the power to those two units is turned off. You'll have power for other electric needs, of course, but your heat and hot water will be drawn from storage units.

Because during the night you'll spend just 2.28¢ per kilowatt-hour instead of 4.28¢. And this lower rate applies to nighttime use of all other appliances, too. In addition, with an approved water heater, you also get a $3 per month reduction of your bill. And if you install ETS Home Heating, you can get an additional credit during six winter months based on your heating requirements. For example, a customer in a 1400-square-foot home can receive a total additional credit of approximately $108 per year for allowing UGI to control home and water heating storage equipment. Thermal storage equipment can be used in all new homes, and in some older homes, provided they are or can be properly insulated. To learn more about storage heating, call UGI Corporation at 283-0611 or Enterprise 10636 and ask for information about Rate RTU.

The nighttime discount rate can save you up to 50% compared to daytime costs.

Wise use of energy and reduced operating costs benefit every homeowner. If you're building a new home or installing a new heating system, or water heater, the use of storage-type equipment can help save operating costs.

*Costs apply to Rate RTU only 2.28¢ per kWh between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. (Off-peak hours). 4.28¢ per kWh between 7 a.m. and 11 p.m. (On-peak hours). Plus applicable power cost adjustment and Pa. tax surcharge, both of which apply to all electric rates. Minimum monthly charge is $9.08.
