Florida to retry 'porno prince' hit suspect

Florida's Assistant State Atty. Rick Garfield is preparing for a new trial in the prosecution of 29-year-old Solomon Webb of Fort Lauderdale, charged with the Feb. 5 killing of John Krasner, former Harveys Lake adult bookstore operator.

Webb is alleged to have shot the owner of pornography stores in several states while Krasner was parking his car near a motel. Webb's estranged wife, Debra Ann, told police that her husband came to her home about midnight the night of the killing and said that he had accidentally shot a man. She also provided police with a lead on Webb. The following evening, police apprehended Webb walking along the street near his home. Later Webb reportedly confessed to the shooting and was charged with the killing of Krasner.

Webb was brought to trial during the week of July 28 but the prosecution's principal witness, Webb's wife, failed to appear. The jury could not come to a decision and Webb was returned to Broward County prison where he awaits a new trial. No date has been set for the new trial.

In the meantime, Webb's wife showed up in the courtroom after the jury announced that it was deadlocked. She told the presiding judge, Eugene Garrett, that she had no transportation and had no one to take care of her child.

Judge Garrett, angered by her flimsy alibi, handed down a decision of $500 fine or six months in jail. Since Mrs. Webb could not pay the fine, she is serving the six month sentence.

The Webb child is being cared for by Webb's parents.

Harveys Lake may consider Seekar again

Harveys Lake Borough is considering a $10,900 contract garbage collecting bid by Seekar Enterprises.

The borough is presently served on a contract basis by Galka and Bean Sanitation Services, a Noxen firm, which has been collecting garbage since January of this year. However, its contract contains provisions for the borough to terminate its services on 45-day notice effective six months after starting work.

Seekar is owned by former Harveys Lake resident Richard Tattersall and formerly collected garbage in the borough.

Borough council president Robert DeRemer said this week that the borough advertised for new bids early this year and that Seekar's is the only one yet received.

The Seekar bid, he continued, has been turned over to the council's sanitation committee, consisting of Guy Giordano and Andrew Morgus, for study. He said that the borough would cancel Galka and Bean and consider another firm if it could save money by doing so.

The request for additional bids was intended to provide possible money-saving alternatives to Galka and Bean for the borough, he added.

Galka and Bean's 18-month contract expires next June, and the borough will again request new bids before that time.

IT WILL BE AT THE FAIR--The Dallas Post Clown Face clown at Circus World near Orlando, Fla., shows a Harveys Lake youngster how it's really done.

Fall Fair underway

The Luzerne County Fall Fair began Wednesday and runs through Sunday this week at the Lehman Horse Show Grounds, Rte. 118, Lehman, Pa.

The fair is held each year to help support the Back Mountain Mobile Intensive Care Unit and the medical facility in the process of being built on Rte. 118. The fair provides four days of live entertainment, amusement rides, commercial exhibits, hobby, arts and crafts tent, delicious food, and plenty of fun for the whole family.

The entertainment will begin on Thursday night, with Abilene, a country bluegrass group. On Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday Uncle Ted will appear with feats of magic for children of all ages.

On Friday evening the Lake Lehman Band, Grand National champions, under the direction of John Miliauskas, will be performing; as well as the Poets, a contemporary rock group. A trip into the past is also on schedule when Frankie and the Korvettes take us back to the fifties with music and dance.

Saturday afternoon will be highlighted by a huge hot air balloon show. Three graceful hot air balloons will be suspended over the arena. The demonstration will begin at 1:30. Then at 4 p.m. Lipko's Comedy Chimps perform on motorcycles, play music, roller skate, and much more to delight your fancy.

At 8:45 TOYZ a 60's rock group will entertain until 11:30 p.m. Also appearing on the grounds Saturday and Sunday will be Jeremiah Puddleduck (Patrick Ward) with surprises for the kids.

On Sunday night the Vicksburgs will entertain listeners with country gospel music starting at 6:30 p.m. Also appearing earlier that evening will be Bobby Baird's Dixieland Jazz Band.

The fair will be open on Wednesday evening with admission free. Only the amusement rides will be running. On Thursday and Friday the fair will open at 6 p.m. until midnight, and Saturday and Sunday will open at 1 p.m. until midnight. Admission will be $1 per adult and 50 cents per child.

Commercial exhibitors throughout Northeastern Pennsylvania will be displaying their wares from Thursday until Sunday. Listed are several exhibitors who have already reserved space for that weekend.
