

Fink hosts officials

Dallas Borough and Township officials were guests of College Misericordia for lunch on Monday for the first of a series of meetings being planned by college with local government officials.

Dr. Joseph R. Fink, president of Misericordia, planned the luncheon in order to become more familiar with local officials and to give them the opportunity to meet college administrators who usually deal with the community.

The group discussed college plans and programs as well as the relationship the college enjoys with the surrounding community. Dr. Fink asked the group to feel free to contact him on any problems that might arise as well as to discuss ways of improving the college's services to the citizens of the Back Mountain.

"We are reaching out to the local community," the President said, "to offer our campus and our programs to area residents."

Some items discussed included availing the college's new ice skating rink to the public this winter and opening up the tennis courts if the present facilities can be expanded.

Government officials present said the township relationship has always been good.

Tombstones discarded near Pole 71

Sandra Sirhan, Harveys Lake resident, found two tombstones discarded along the Harveys Lake Road, near Pole 71, on Sunday afternoon and is storing them in the hopes that they will be claimed by someone, who knows where the stones had been located.

The larger of the two tombstones is engraved "Clarissa E. Smith, 1874-1875, daughter of Eligah and Emily A. Smith" and has a rosebud carved at the top. The smaller one is engraved with the name "Isabel Rittenhouse, 4 months, 1894."

Persons knowing anything about either of the tombstones may contact Ms. Sirhan at Harveys Lake.

Defense says Krasner was 'hit'

Public Defender Alan Schreiber, counsel for Solomon Webb charged with the killing of the late John Krasner, argued to the end of Webb's re-trial that Krasner's murder could have been a result of an alleged pornography business "war" between Krasner of Harveys Lake and another Lake adult book store operator, Alan Morrow.

At the time of his murder on Feb. 5 in a parking lot of a Fort Lauderdale motel, Krasner was appealing his conviction on charges of attempting to have Morrow killed. Schreiber argued that Krasner's murder could have been the work of an unknown professional hit man, and not by Webb, a former auto mechanic.

The 29-year old Webb was charged with the killing of Krasner after he reportedly confessed to the shooting of Krasner to the Fort Lauderdale police. Police took Webb into custody the day following the shooting while he was walking along the street near his home.

Earlier Webb's estranged wife, Debra Ann, told police that Webb came to her home about midnight the date of the shooting and told her that he had accidentally shot a man. She also provided police with a lead on her husband.

But when Webb was brought to trial during the week of July 28 in Fort Lauderdale, the prosecution's chief witness, Webb's wife failed to appear. The jury could not come to a decision at that time, voting 10-2 for acquittal, and Webb was returned to Broward County prison where he remained until his trial last week.

The Fort Lauderdale jury last week indicated that they believed prosecutor Rick Garfield's charges that Webb shot and killed Krasner during a robbery attempt at the motel where Krasner was vacationing with his family.

After finding Webb guilty Friday, Oct. 5, in the shooting death of Krasner, the jury took only 45 minutes on Monday to return with an advisory recommendation of life imprisonment for Webb.

Circuit Judge Eugene Garrett set Nov. 9 as the date for sentencing Webb. If Garrett follows the jury's recommendation, Webb will serve a minimum of 25 years without any possibility of parole.

Upon hearing the jury's recommendation, Webb remained calm but his wife, Debra, wept quietly as Webb was led from the courtroom.

When asked about the statement she allegedly made to the Fort Lauderdale police at the time of the shooting—that Webb told her he had just shot a man—Mrs. Webb said, "I don't remember anything. I know that Solomon is not capable of murder, that he will appeal this thing and he will beat it."
