

Getting ready to tie up at a dock is the Harveys Lake steamer Acoma with most of her passengers enjoying the open air of the fore deck. The photo was taken from what is now the picnic grounds.

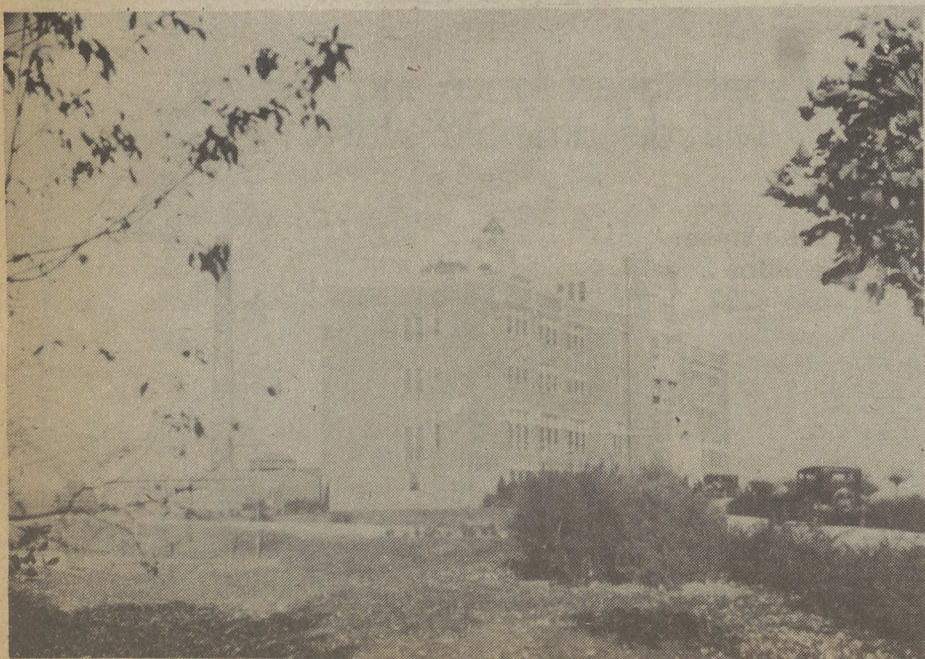

Main Street, Dallas, looking down toward the intersection of Route 415, Main Street, and Church Street, long before the roads were paved.

Horse and buggy was the only means of transportation at the turn of the century for the Neyharts of Huntsville.

Huntsville Dam as it was at the turn of the century before there were paved roads and so many houses in the area. (Photo courtesy of James Kozemchak)

College Misericordia's original administration and classroom building shortly after it opened.

The large home on Main Street which is now the home of the Back Mountain Memorial Library.