

Goeringer is merit finalist

Mrs. Nancy Goeringer, chairman of the home economics department of Dallas Senior High School, was notified recently that she was Merit Finalist in the Teacher of the Year competition sponsored by the Pennsylvania Home Economist Association.

Mrs. Goeringer was awarded a plaque by the association in recognition for innovative directions and activities in home economics education. Two of the activities cited were the high school's child development program and the nutrition program, presented by the high school students for the elementary students of the district.

Edgar Hughes, Dallas Senior High School principal, nominated Mrs. Goeringer for the award by submitting information about the programs to the state committee chaired by Joyce Roof of Athens.

The home economist is completing her 18th year on the Dallas High School faculty, the only teaching position she has had since graduating from college.

A resident of the Back Mountain for 20 years, Mrs. Goeringer moved to Tunkhannock after she and her husband, Raymond, sold their Lake Louise property.
