Heart victims can help with new study

One-time Heart Attack victims between the ages of 28 and 64 are currently being sought to participate in a study which lowers cholesterol to an unprecedented level.

With heart disease claiming 800,000 lives annually, the National Institutes of Health is funding four research centers across the country to explore the role of lowered cholesterol in the treatment of heart attack victims. Researchers hope to find conclusive evidence that maximal reduction of this fatty substance will significantly reduce the risk of heart disease.

The East Coast Center, which opened a short time ago, is located at The Lankenau Hospital in Philadelphia. The center provides transportation and lodging for all prospective participants and an interested family member to come in for a screening visit.

Interested persons 28 through 64 who have suffered one Heart Attack within the last five years are urged to contact the Hyperlipidemia Study for more information. Call toll free 1-800-362-5244.
