State Sen. Frank J. O'Connell, R-20th District, has announced that the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources has agreed to lend local officials about $5,000 worth of water quality monitoring equipment to help predict potential algae bloom problems in Harveys Lake.

This past summer, the lake was plagued with a profuse growth of Anabaena algae. DER plans to lend light penetration and dissolved oxygen measuring equipment for the project. The department's Bureau of Water Quality Management will train local people in use of the equipment and will provide technical assistance in interpreting the data.
