

The Dallas Post's SPRING Guide To Local Businesses

Green Valley ready for Mother's Day

Green Valley Landscaping Co., located on Northampton Street, Kingston, has been in business for the past 10 years. The landscaping, greenhouses and retail business is owned by James Hall and J. B. Turner. Hall, a graduate of Penn State University, has been in landscaping business for more than 40 years. Green Valley employs approximately 25 persons in its retail and landscaping business. Customers will find a large variety of floral and vegetable plants for their yards or gardens as well as beautiful plants and hanging baskets for Mother's Day. Green Valley also has a wide selection of trees.

Wayne reports on slate meeting

Dallas Township supervisor Frank Wagner returned from the State Convention of Township Supervisors last Thursday. Over 3500 local officials gathered at Hershey for the three day conference. Discussion and voting on 82 pieces of legislation was held. Wagner said some of the major topics included revised methods of distributing Revenue Sharing and increased Liquid Fuel allotments. "Everyone is getting more Liquid Fuel dollars," he explained. He also sees the Federal government's move to shift distribution of Revenue sharing to the individual states as a good one. "There will be less red tape this way. They feel the local governments know best how to use the money, so we'll be able to spend it where it is most needed," he said. Wagner feels more local officials should take advantage of the yearly convention. He has gone for the last six years and always comes away with a wealth of information about what's going on around the State. "You get to know what others are thinking and doing, and what their problems are. It's really very informative." Wagner also serves on the nominating committee for the State Association. He will be sharing his insights with the other two Township supervisors, Phil Walter and Glen Howell, in more detail.

Dallas man awaits sentence

Luzerne County Court is awaiting a pre-sentencing investigation on Dallas businessman Wilson R. Garinger of 24 Lake St. Judge Bernard Podcasy's office reported a sentencing hearing will be scheduled after the Adult Probation and Parole Office makes its report. It was not known when the report would be completed. Garinger was continued on bail after he pleaded guilty in court last week to two counts of delivery and one count of possession of a controlled substance. He is charged with three counts each of possession with intent to deliver and delivery of a controlled substance. Charges stem from three incidents in 1981. The maximum sentence on the three charges to which he pleaded guilty is ten years and 30 days in jail and a $30,500 fine.

Norton's open for 10 years

Abraham Yerit has owned Nortons since November, 1981. The business, however, has been in operation at its location at 39 E. Northampton St., Wilkes-Barre for the past 10 years. Prior to that time, Nortons was located in downtown Wilkes-Barre. The store features moderate priced dresses and gowns with over 7,000 garments in stock. "We probably have the biggest inventory of anyone in this area," said Yerit. Shoppers will find all sizes at Nortons, Juniors size 3 to 15, misses, 6 to 20 and larger women, 12 1/2 to 24 1/2. Most of the merchandise is 30 to 50 percent less than the same quality merchandise elsewhere. A family-owned business, Yerit employs six staff members to offer prompt, courteous service to customers. Nortons is open Monday and Thursday, 10 a. m. to 8 p. m., Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, 10 to 5 p. m., and Sunday, noon to 8 p. m. The business is closed Saturday. Yerit's wife, Sylvia, sometimes assists him in the store although she is busy with their 4 1/2 year old daughter, Abigail.
