An attempt by Dallas Borough Council to reinstate former patrolman John Fowler at his former full salary was defeated at a meeting of the council last week. Councilman Jerry Machell made the motion to give the recently re-hired officer his full salary. Harold Hobst seconded the motion, but Council members Nancy Eckert, William Berti and Willard Newberry voted against the idea. Dr. Craig Aicher was absent from the meeting.

Fowler resigned his position with the Dallas police last fall, but re-applied for the job before it was filled. The post had been advertised at a lower salary, however, and Fowler was rehired at the advertised wage. He was away from the job for two months.

Sandy Beach has been rezoned from commercial to residential as of last week. Harveys Lake Borough Council approved the move for a six-acre portion of the beach area which will now be sold in lots of about one acre each. Thomas Garrity, Harveys Lake realtor reported the lots will cost about $25,000 each. He added that five prospective buyers have been waiting for council to approve the zoning change.

Two modular housing units will soon be open for use at the State Corrections Institution at Chase. The buildings will hold 104 inmates, and are set up much like dormitories. Two large rooms will be divided into numerous cubicles with beds and lockers and waist-high partitions between each. A day room will separate the two-sleeper quarters.

Acting superintendent, Joseph Ryan, explained the modulars will house only low-risk, non-violent inmates, who are nearing the end of their terms. Ten corrections officers, hired in November, will guard the units, and five more will be added within a month. The units are sited behind the prison's kitchen.

Penn State Seed Co., Rte. 309, Kunkle, has received an affirmative answer to its request for a zoning change on a tract of land owned by the company in that area. Dallas Township supervisors, meeting last week, voted to approve the change from B-3 and A-1 to M-2, light industrial. Penn State Seed had received a variance to construct a warehouse and office showroom on the land but later required the zoning change to meet loan qualifications set by the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority.

William Giberson, RD 1, Noxen, will have his case heard in Luzerne County Court, according to a decision handed down by District Justice Leonard Harvey last week.

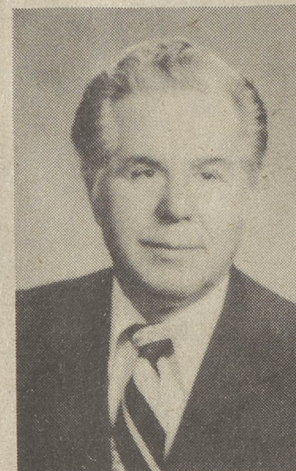

Giberson is charged with indecent assault and corrupting the morals of a minor in connection with incidents involving a 13-year old girl. The charges were brought by State Police Trooper Stanley J. Jezewski, and stem from incidents on June 26 and 27, 1982. In a preliminary hearing, Harvey ruled sufficient evidence existed to send the case to trial. Giberson was represented by Atty. Joseph Sklarosky. Assistant District Atty. Charles Coslett prosecuted. Giberson is free on $10,000 bail.

Dallas Borough has applied for a $70,000 community development grant to construct sidewalks along Huntsville Road from Franklin to Park Streets. Borough secretary Ralph Garris has reported the grant application is in and engineers have drawn up the plans. However, the community's per capita income may interfere with the project. If the income level is too high for federal grant standards, the grant can be refused.

The candidates announce:

Caprari seeks county position

Dominick Caprari, Independent Democrat, has announced his intention to seek the post of Luzerne County Commissioner in the 1983 election. He is interested in encouraging manufacturers from other states to come to Luzerne County in order to cut skyrocketing unemployment rates.

ment Industry, as an agent and became vice president. He has served as Pittston City assessor from 1953 to 1957, is a member of the Loyal Democrats of Luzerne County and Italian American Veterans, Wilkes-Barre Chapter.

He has volunteered his services over the years to assist black lung cases in filing the endless paper work for benefits. He has processed applications and given directions to residents of Luzerne and Sullivan Counties. This work was processed through the Wilkes-Barre, Johnstown and Washington, D.C. offices, and he has made appearances on behalf of the applicants at local hearings and before administrative law judges in Federal Court.
