ARNIE GARINGER

Garinger Writes Magazine Article

Arnie Garinger of Harveys Lake, associate professor in College Misericordia's division of education, has published an article in the magazine, "Motor Home."

The article, a guest commentary in the nationally distributed magazine, is entitled, "So You Want to Own a Campground!" It outlines dozens of Garinger's observations on camping and campers.

Garinger is co-owner of The Onawandah Family Campground in Tunkhannock. The site was the Onawandah Girl Scout Camp until Garinger and his partner bought it in 1971.

Here are some of the "givens, assumptions, truths, (and half-truths)" of campground ownership, as seen through the eyes of Arnie Garinger:

"All campers in tents are not poor...All campers in large RVs are not rich...All visitors to your campground will not seek you out to pay their guest fee...Campers tend to be more conservative with their LP-gas than with your electricity...Campers agree that everyone's dog should be tied up except their own...Campers truly believe that three successive days of rain are your fault...Sewers always overflow on Sunday (usually at lunch time)...Campers all seem to have faulty speedometers. Your sign says 5 mph, their speedometer says 30 mph."

Garinger concludes his article by noting that, "by and large, real campers are the most honest, caring, warm and sharing, unobtrusive, thoughtful people in the world. In 12 years we have grossed over a million dollars and we've only spent a million and a half. Why stop now?"
