PWP Meets

The Wilkes-Barre Area Chapter 961 of Parents Without Partners held a steak roast recently at the home of Jean Duda, Davenport Street, Dallas.

Mrs. Duda stated that PWP usually tries to find donors for a local Red Cross blood drive, but this year, since they were unable to find a sufficient amount of people to donate blood, they decided to hold a function to raise money instead.

About 40 members and their guests attended the function in Mrs. Duda's yard. The members brought their own "grillings" and the ladies of PWP provided salads and fixings. The event was organized by Delorine Boline, community service director. Hostess was Jean Duda and co-hostess was Brenda Zahasky.

The entertainment was a great surprise since a "Belly-Gram" was delivered by a belly dancer to one of the male members of the group who was celebrating a birthday.

Parents Without Partners is an international organization for single parents and their children. It represents a source of support, understanding and friendship for single parent families. It provides educational programs, discussions, family activities and social functions. It also seeks to ease the emotional and other strains placed on these families.

President of the local chapter is Therese Gentile. Any interested persons should contact Beatrice Bolacker, Membership Director, at PWP, P.O. Box 1452, Wilkes-Barre.
