to be designated as "Classics", she added.

Apparently the road would benefit the Sculls if it is constructed according to the records on file in the courthouse, but their concern is that traffic to their business - a business which is their only income - will be cut off while the road is under construction.

"When we started two years ago, we had only a small 14-foot camper for an office, now we have a 45-foot trailer for our office. We are trying to clear all of our property as we have the money to do so and working on the reconditioning of all the cars so we can park them side by side on the sale lot.

"If the road goes through as proposed it will come within five feet of the garage in the one area and within about 15 feet of the office in the other. My concern is that we have the proper access from the highway,"said Ray. "Our customers have to get in and out in order to do business with us. "I can't understand why the Authority wants to construct a road which will go nowhere when that money could be better used to control the offensive odor emanating from the Sewer Authority building."

George J. Alles, Jr., chairman of the Harveys Lake Sewer Authority, explained that Greenwood Avenue was a "paper" road only, dating back to the early 1800's.

'That road was never dedicated and could never be taken over by any person or persons out a municipal body. It runs parallel to the sewer authority so we decided to take it over by condemnation and improve that area coming into the lake.

"There is no legal access where the Scuris presently come into their place of business, but his property is adjacent to the road. We are going to give a free and clear deed to the one end of the property so he will have legal access to his business. The road will actually be beneficial to him and improve his business.

"We don't want to put him out of business. In the next few weeks, we hope to sit down with the Sculls and their attorney and, hopefully, both sides will resolve the situation to everyone's satisfaction.'
