THE OTHER EVENING AT DINNER, my family was having a discussion on what country each of us would like to visit. My daughter Nancy, mentioned Spain; my daughter, Nicole, France; my husband, Bill said Switzerland; while I have always dreamed of visiting England. Billy, our three-year-old, looked up from his plate and said "I'd like to go to Shickshinny." I guess to a three-year old, Shickshinny sounds like a pretty exotic place!

In conjunction with Coalworkers' Health Awareness Month, the Mercy Hospital Pulmonary Care Center recently sponsored a picture coloring contest for children ages seven and eight. The contest was one of the many activities to promote the clinics throughout Pennsylvania which offer respiratory services for miners. The first place entry was submitted by Margaret Gilgallon, age 8, who was the recipient of a $50 U.S. Savings Bond.

Coalworkers' Health Awareness Month was coordinated statewide by the Pennsylvania Department of Health, by whom the Pulmonary Care Center is partly funded.
