Evaluation committee commends Dallas School District programs

Following three days of observing classes, faculty members, students, student activities, interviewing department heads, administrators, and secretarial staff, the Middle States Evaluation Committee members commended the Dallas School District on its overall senior high school program and facilities.

In a meeting with faculty, administrators, board members and non-professional employees, Committee chairman Ralph Rizzolo assured all that Dallas Senior High School was most worthy of continued accreditation.

In his oral report to the members of the high school, Rizzolo stated that the committee had many commendations for the various departments as well as some recommendations for each category.

"These will follow in our detailed, written report which administration officials will receive in the near future," said Rizzolo. "Generally speaking, the committee recognizes the outstanding work and the progress made in the district's senior high school."

Rizzolo, vice principal of Pequanook High School, Pompton Plains, N.J., has served on countless evaluation committees during the past several years and, with his committee members, does a thorough review of all categories within the school program.

Working with him this year were administration officials from throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, as well as New Jersey and New York.

Included on the committee were William Linnane, Susquehanna High School, Glen Rock, Pa., assistant chairman; Robert Blanchard, art chairman; Allen DiMarco, business education; William Below, English; Sr. Nancy Hawkins, foreign language; Raymond A. Coleman, health, phys. ed, and drivers education; Dr. Nancy Sterner, home economics.

Also, Bruce Covillard, industrial arts; Marwin Cummings, mathematics; Sr. Jan Marie Kalyan; Ms. Joyce Brobst, science; J. Rodger Lewis, social studies; Mrs. Melanie Sutphin, special education; Mrs. Marion Saul, learning media services; and Ms. Norman Jean Rogers, student services.

Committee members spent three days touring the school facilities, evaluating media services, discussing student services with guidance personnel, talking with students, visiting each classroom, evaluating department heads and reviewing programs with principals and administrative staff.

On the final day, Oct. 27, they made their reports to Rizzolo, who gave the oral report to the assembly.

POLICE BLOTTER

Kingston Township Police Chief Paul Sabol has officially thanked the kids in the area for the vandalism they didn't do on Halloween. He expressed the appreciation of the men in his department for the pranks that were kept at a bare minimum this year.

In the one Halloween related incident reported, Chief Sabol stated that a mailbox, valued at $50, belonging to Helen Zukosky, Manor Drive, was destroyed by a pumpkin.

A case of Criminal Mischief is under investigation with police reporting damage to a pool cover at the home of Robert Steiner, RD 3, Box 209, Carverton.

A bomb scare at the Dallas Junior High School last week proved to be just that "a scare." A phone call was placed at 11:45 a.m. claiming that a bomb had been placed in the building. All students and teachers were immediately evacuated from the school and a search was conducted by members of the Dallas Fire Company, Dallas Police and State Police. An investigation of the matter is continuing with several good leads reported by police.

While police were at the Junior High School, three juveniles were seen walking down the hall and were identified as trespassers by school officials. Police identified the trio as students from West Side Vot-Tech School who had not attended their own school for 18 days prior to this incident.

Dallas Township Patrolman Clark Van Orden arrested the youths, two of whom were brothers and charged them with Defiant Trespassing when not licensed or privileged to do so. Citations on the charges are being processed by District Magistrate Earl Gregory.

A burglary at the Acme Market in Shavertown and another at the Eugene Gilmartin home at 116 Doran Drive, Trucksville are under investigation by the Kingston Township Police Department. An undisclosed amount of cash was apparently stolen from the supermarket office early last Wednesday afternoon while customers shopped. Police report entrance to the office area was made by removing a glass panel, the burglary was reported by Fred Leaf, Security Manager for the Acme chain.

Police report the burglary at the Gilmartin home took place later the same afternoon while family members were out for a short period of time. Entry to the home was gained by smashing a glass panel in a door, stolen was a quantity of cash, sterling silver and jewelry.

MAGISTRATE REPORT

State Police arrested an Edwardsville youth last week and charged him with selling hashish to an undercover agent in front of the Westmoreland Elementary School last December.

Douglas Walter Van Keuren, 22, of 3 Hilltop Apartments was arraigned before District Magistrate Earl Gregory on information received from Cpl. Thomas P. Baggett, Pa. State Police, Wyoming

Barracks. It was alleged that Van Keuren sold 10 grams of hashish for $85 to the agent in front of the school on South Lehigh Street in Trucksville.

He was charged with Possession of A Controlled Substance, Delivering A Controlled Substance and Conspiracy. He was released under $2,500 bail pending a hearing November 10.

"Thirty days in jail" was the sentence passed on Charles F. Goodrich, 57, of Harveys Lake who pleaded guilty to Driving Under the Influence before District Magistrate Earl Gregory. The jail sentence is mandatory under the new Drunken Driving Law according to the magistrate because it is Goodrich's second offense.

Goodrich, who was represented at the hearing by Atty. John Thomas, was arrested in September by Dallas Township Police Chief Carl Miers at the scene of the two car accident at the intersection of Route 309 and Alderson Road.

In addition to the jail sentence to be served at Luzerne County Prison, Goodrich was fined $300 and court costs and is directed to attend the Court Advocates Drug and Alcohol Program.

FIRE PHONE

A reported house fire at the Roe home at 59 Grandview Avenue, New Goss Manor, Dallas proved to be only a case of well done lamb chops.

The alarm, which came in on fire and police phones one day last week, was relayed via automatic dialing equipment from Chicago when a smoke alarm in the home activated the system. Four pieces of equipment from the Dallas Fire Company, Dallas Police and Dallas Ambulance Company responded to the call.

Dallas Fire Company was also called out last week to battle a reported brush fire on Circle Drive in College Manor.

Assistant Fire Chief Robert Besecker reported that the blaze was confined to the back yard of a new home under construction, but had appeared larger because of the darkness.

He cautioned residents against night-time burning.
