

Ground broken

Ground was broken recently for the construction of a new athletic field at College Misericordia. Funded by InterMetro Industries Corporation, Wilkes-Barre, the field will be named in memory of William Lipo, an employee of InterMetro for 24 years. Lipo was an active volunteer in organizing athletic

Misericordia names eight new trustees

Monsignor Andrew J. McGowan, Chairman of College Misericordia's Board of Trustees, announced the appointment of eight new trustees. They are Sr. M. Theresa Antone, RSM; Leo C. Beebe, Marilyn M. Maslow, James F. Mundy, Robert T. Patton, Sr. Rose Carmel Scalone, RSM; Allan P. Slaff and Shelly Smulowitz.

Sr. Marie Francel D'Andrea, RSM and Sr. Dorothy Marie Reaver, RSM, were appointed to the Board's mentorship program. They will intern with the Board of Trustees to gain experience for future board positions.

Sr. M. Theresa Antone, RSM, from Middletown, Rhode Island, is the vice president for institutional advancement at Salve Regina-the Newport College, Newport, R.I. A member of the Religious Sisters of Mercy, College Misericordia's founding order, Sr. Theresa holds a doctor of education degree from Howard University.

Leo C. Beebe, is the dean of administrative studies at Glassboro State College, Glassboro, New Jersey. A resident of Ardmore, Pa., Beebe is chairman of the board of the Philadelphia Health Plan and holds numerous other board positions at institutions throughout the east.

Marilyn M. Maslow, a Dallas resident, received her degree from Colby-Sawyer College. She is on the boards of Wyoming Seminary, the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind, the Sordani Art Gallery and the American Cancer Society, among others.

James F. Mundy is an attorney with the Philadelphia law firm of Rayner, McCarty, Binder and Mundy. A resident of Media, Mundy is treasurer of the Philadelphia Bar Association and president of the Philadelphia Trial Lawyers Association.

Robert T. Patton is vice president for marketing new business development and public relations at the Wyoming National Bank of Wilkes-Barre. A graduate of King's College, he has pursued graduate studies at the University of Scranton. Patton is a member of the board of directors of the Wilkes-Barre Catholic Youth Center, the Economic Development Council, and other local organizations.

Sr. Rose Carmel Scalone, RSM, is an associate in nursing with the Columbia University School of Nursing in New York. She received a masters of public health degree from John Hopkins University. She is a member of the American Public Health Association and the American College of Nurse-Midwives.

Allan P. Slaff, a resident of Dallas and Naples, Florida, is president of the Luzerne County News Company in Wilkes-Barre. A graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, Slaff attended the Harvard Business School as well as post graduate programs at U.S. Naval institutions. He is on the boards of several corporations located in New Hampshire, Tennessee and Florida.

Shelly Smulowitz is a graduate of College Misericordia. She is a registered music therapist at the Summit Health Care Center in Wilkes-Barre. A resident of Kingston, Mrs. Smulowitz serves on the boards of College Misericordia Art Gallery and the Friends of Family Service. She is also a member of the National Council of Junior Women.

The new trustees will serve three year terms on College Misericordia's Board.

Support group

A new group has been formed at the Penn State Wilkes-Barre Campus to provide support for the returning adult student. TNT, for Typical Non-Traditional student, presented its first seminar recently in Hayfield House on the Lehman campus. Dr. Ned Delaney, director of the Court Advocate Program of

"It's true that State College is quite different from rural Dallas," he said. "I like it better down there, though, because they have made everything so convenient. Everything a student needs is within walking distance."

Bill agrees his first few months away from home has been a growing experience for him. Ironically, his parents feel it has been a growing experience for them also.

According to Mrs. Isopi, this is a time when you know you have done everything for your child, and so, you must let go. She is quick to point out that the child isn't the only one who can explore new experiences at this time, though.

"You can begin to do things for yourself once again, but only after you're completely sure you've done what you can for your child," she said, glancing proudly at her son.

The "letting-go" process wasn't all that easy for Bill, Sr., however. The day after they moved Bill down to the campus, Mr. Isopi called his son's dorm four times and, he admits, he misses his son very much.

Things are especially difficult for Bill Sr. when it comes time for things he and his son always did together such as hunting, chores around the house and all the sports they used to enjoy together.

"I know we'll be able to do them again in the summer," said Bill Sr. "I'll just keep thinking of that."

Bill's parents say the biggest changes they have experienced are the little every day things.

"It was nice to know before that Bill would be home from school when we got home from work," said Mrs. Isopi. "Now, the house just seems so empty and quiet."

Mrs. Isopi also admits that while Bill is away, she tries to keep all of his personal things clean and in its place. "I like to especially have his bedroom the way he left it when he comes home."

The old adage, "There's no place like home," fits perfectly here. With a family as close as the Isopi family, it has an even more special meaning.

Steering Committee

Lake-Noxen students present Talent Show

The Lake-Noxen Elementary PTA held a meeting recently at the school with Vice President Linda VanGorder presiding.

A question and answer period was conducted with the cafeteria stop light as the subject. Mr. Kunkle, school principal, explained the light's purpose to the group. Following the meeting, the students presented their annual "Talent Show." The children were dressed in colorful costumes and, in spite of a few backstage jitters, all performed very well. Each participant received a 50 cent piece from the PTA. Refreshments were served following the show.

The next board meeting will be held Thursday, Dec. 8, at 7:30 p.m. The next unit meeting will be held in January.

Ross named to Nesbitt

Kevin Ross has been appointed Assistant Administrator at Nesbitt Memorial Hospital according to Abram Nesbitt, III, president of its Board of Directors.

Ross comes to Nesbitt with an extensive administrative health care background. He was a former administrator of Electra Memorial Hospital, in Electra, Texas. He served as interim administrator at Blackwell Hospital in Gorman, Texas and an assistant administrator at Coffee General Hospital in Manchester, Tennessee. Ross has also served as acting administrator and assistant administrator at Paintsville Hospital in Paintsville, Kentucky.

Kevin Ross completed his undergraduate studies at the University of Delaware in Newark, Delaware in 1977. He received a Masters of Public Health-Health Systems Management from the Tulane School of Public Health and Tropical Medicine located in New Orleans, Louisiana in 1980.

KEVIN ROSS

In 1978, Ross was a recipient of a U.S. Public Health Service Traineeship which was awarded on the basis of merit. He also received a research grant from the National Institute on Aging in January of 1977.
