The 5 foot 3 inch, 115-lb. Dallas High School athlete has been successful in all four sports. Last season, she was a member of the league-winning Dallas girls' basketball team. This season, she was the only Dallas student to run in the Cross Country Districts and came in second to qualify for state competition where she won a medal for placing in the top 20.

Amy also played link on this season's field hockey team - the first team from Dallas to win the District championship and advance to Regionals. Track and basketball are still ahead of her for this year.

Amy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Aston, is also an honor student at Dallas High School.

'We lost most of our starters through graduation but with Coach Karuza and Assistant Coach Michelle Kravitsky if we work hard, I believe we should do quite well, predicted Amy.

In track, she takes part in the 800m run, mile run and mile relay. During the summer, Amy plays softball with the American Legion's women's team.

Which is her favorite sport? Amy thought it over carefully before answering, "I think that I have to say field hockey, it is so exciting and it is so fast, but I like the other

"I also believe that taking part in extracurricular activities gives you incentive for doing better academically. You need to do well in one to do well in the other.

Amy wants to attend college and major in sports medicine. In the meantime, any leisure time she has she spends with her family or

Local excels on Penn team

It was a game the University of Pennsylvania football team had to win to stay in contention for the Ivy League title. More than 30,000 people journeyed to Penn's Franklin Field to watch the Quakers batle Princeton in the annual Homecoming game. In a tense second half, it was a strong pass rush on Princeton's quarterback by sopomore Ken Coombs, a native of Trucksville, that helped Penn seal a crucial 28-27

Coombs' defensive line play was rated best that day by Penn's coaches, who used him this season as a defensive end on passing downs. The sophomore finished the year with 24 tackles and two fumble recoveries in his first season of varsity play for the Quakers who won a share in the Ivy League title by defeating Darmouth.

'Ken made a significant contribution to our defense," said Ed Zubrow, defensive line coach.
