ALTON NULTON

Harveys Lake boy wins computer

Seven-year-old Alton Nulton of Harveys Lake was the grand prize winner of an 800 Atari computer given away by Commonwealth Telephone Company as part of its Phones and More communications center grand opening.

"Alton's always been my good luck charm," said his mother, Dorothy, when the computer was delivered.

Alton's ticket, entered by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Nulton, was chosen out of 1,000 entries.

The Phones and More communication center, located on Route 309 north of Dallas, offers customers a broad range of telecommunications products for the home and business.

Telephones, ancillary devices, pagers and business systems can be demonstrated and are sold over the counter.

Although Alton, who attends the Evans Falls Elementary School, might be a little young for computer programming, his older brothers and sisters—Judy, Ronnie, Trudy and Billy, use the computer for their school work.

Pets can also suffer frostbite

A disturbing number of frost-bitten pets are showing up in the nation's veterinary hospitals, according to a just completed survey of members of American Animal Hospital Association (AAHA), the leading spokesperson for small animal medicine. One doctor reported a case of frostbite so severe the cat's ears had fallen off. Others tell of treating ice-encrusted, frostbitten paws.

Just because your pet has a fur coat doesn't mean he's invulnerable to cold. And, simple as it sounds, the most important thing you can do is provide a warm, dry, preferably indoor shelter. If you have an outdoor dog, your veterinarian can tell you how to make your pet's shelter warm and waterproof.

The survey ranked anti-freeze a very close second as a winter pet hazard. Unfortunately, anti-freeze is a tasty treat to both pets and children. Ethylene glycol, a common anti-freeze ingredient, is a cat and dog killer. It destroys a pet's kidneys if not immediately treated by a veterinarian. Respondents recommend keeping the container out of reach, thoroughly cleaning up any spillage, and, if anti-freeze is leaking from the radiator, don't put a catch pan where a pet or child can drink from it.

Does your pet have gastritis symptoms and/or paw irritation?

According to the survey, it could be from licking winter's common outdoor staple, rock salt. And the subzero version is even more dangerous. To prevent the salt from burning and sticking during your walk, put a little baby oil and baby powder on your pet's paws and clean off the residue when you get home.

One of the most unfortunate and frequently fatal winter hazards, the veterinarians say, is the automobile. Cats in particular seek warmth under car hoods and near the exhaust system, which causes painful "muffler burn." A simple tap on the horn before starting the car will frighten away any transients.

Other tips to help "winterize" your pet:

Have your dog's nails clipped since the grow much aster if contract with concrete can't keep them trimmed.

Check with your veterinarian to see if your pet needs extra wintertime calories, since more are burned trying to keep warm.

Dandruff on your pet's coat? It's probably dry skin that daily brushing should take care of. And, after your dog's bath, give him a bath oil (the human variety) rinse.
