Lehman's Tracy Turner is now a flag football star

By CHERYL TRAVIS

City schools, you can keep your Harry Hamiltons and Todd Moules because now the Back Mountain can boast an All-American football player of its very own. Flag football, that is!

Remember Tracy Turner, the All-Star everything from Lake-Lehman High School? Now Tracy has added yet another sport to her already lengthy list of athletic expertise.

The University of Rhode Island sophomore was recently named an All-American at the National Collegiate Intramural Flag Football Championships in New Orleans.

Sponsored by Anheuser-Busch, the event featured all teams which finished first or second in regional competition. URI, behind the Lynn Swan-like play of Turner, breezed undefeated through the regionals which were held in New York state.

For its efforts, the team received $500 in prize money and the opportunity to compete in the national tournament.

Tracy relates that at URI, intramurals are taken rather seriously. For that reason, it is no surprise that the university backed the girls 100 percent in their efforts to take home a national title.

Rhode Island provided the team with uniforms, advanced them $1,000 for expenses and even furnished a state wagon for the trip. Budweiser later reimbursed URI the $1,000.

Following the conclusion of tournament games, Budweiser officials chose the All-American team. Tracy and the other selected members were presented with trophies to commemorate the honor.

When asked to comment on her selection, Turner quipped, "I knew I should have played football at Lehman."

Turney may wish she had played football at Lake-Lehman, but it is softball that got her a full ride to Rhode Island. Last year as a freshman, she started in center field and batted lead-off for the nationally-ranked Wrans.

Tracy received post-season honors for her accomplishments, being named to the All-New England team. This spring, Tracy will further display her versatility as she alternates her playing time between the pitcher's mound and center field.
