Rising Star Sets Concert

BY BILL SAVAGE
 Special to the Post

It has been said that the voice of soprano Kathleen Battle matches her personality. If that's true, then local music lovers will be in for a truly charming evening next March when the internationally-known soprano comes to Scranton as part of the Community Concert Association's 1984-85 season.

Miss Battle will perform at the Masonic Temple on Monday, March 25, 1985. Her performance will end the CCA's 1984-85 season and will be preceded by performances by The Canterbury Trio (Nov. 1), The Metropolitan Opera Ballet (Nov. 28), and The Bucharest Philharmonic (March 2, 1985).

The soprano, a native of Ohio, recently told the New York Times, "I think my personality and the sound of my voice go together, hand in hand." In the same interview, she said her voice was "light and bright," qualities which, apparently, have led to her specializing in roles such as Zerlina in Mozart's "Don Giovanni" (a role Mrs. Gardner saw her perform at the Met), Rosina in Rossini's "Il Barbiere di Siviglia," and others.

This season is Miss Battle's sixth at the Met. She is considered one of the young, talented artists being groomed there by the company's controversial music director, James Levine.
