ALICE TINSLEY

Tinsley retires

A number of Wilkes-Barre General Hospital staff nurses recently honored Alice Tinsley, R.N. at a retirement dinner held at Perugini's in Luzerne. She had been a staff nurse at General for the past 22 years, having worked on most of the medical-surgical floors. She was a staff nurse on 5 C-S-N-W for the past six years.

Mrs. Tinsley resides in Dallas with her husband, Leslie. She has two children, Ruth Stanulis of West Wyoming, a phlebotomist at Nesbitt Memorial Hospital; and Calvin J. Tinsley, Petty Officer, Second Class, U.S. Navy, stationed at Norfolk, Va.

Awards night at PSU/W-B

Penn State University/Wilkes-Barre Campus held an awards night and dinner dance at Genetti's Best Western to recognize outstanding students in academics, leadership, and athletics.

Dr. David G. Rice, director of academic affairs, presented the academic awards to Susan G. Frankel, business administration; Ann Marie Martinchak, letters, arts and sciences; Mark T. Henry, electrical engineering technology; John F. Rodriguez, railway engineering technology; Gary M. Suszko, surveying technology; Denis R. Repp, telecommunications technology; and Wesley D. Bickelman, biomedical equipment technology.

The Kolesar Athletic Award, originated by Professor John Kolesar of the engineering department, was presented to Tom Dougherty, the student who most distinguished himself in the area of athletic accomplishment during the academic year.

Other athletic awards were presented to: Bob Kenia, most valuable player, and Joe Masi, most improved player in baseball; Pat Boyle, the basketball team's most valuable player; and George Vogen, most valuable player on the soccer team.

Award made
