Take care with pets during hot weather

With warmer days here, the Pennsylvania Veterinary Medical Association (PVMA) reminds pet owners that leaving a pet in a parked car could be deadly.

"On a warm day, inside car temperatures can reach 160 degrees, even when windows are partially open," said Dr. Sherbyn W. Ostrich, president of the Association. "With only hot air to breathe, the animal can quickly suffer brain damage or die of heat stroke."

The PVMA advises owners to leave pets at home when it is warm or hot outdoors. Additionally, owners should be aware of signs of heat stress: heavy panting, glazed eyes, rapid pulse rate, dizziness, vomiting or a deep red or purple tongue.

"If your animal does become overheated, get him or her into the shade and apply an ice pack or cold towels to head, neck and chest. Don't allow your pet to consume excessive amounts of cold water. Take your pet directly to a veterinarian. It could very well save your pet's life," said Dr. Ostrich.

Committee members are named

The following are members of the Community Service Award Committee of the Back Mountain Protective Association:

Chairman, Dr. Joseph R. Fink president of College Misericordia; Rev. Robert Benson, pastor of the United Methodist Church of Dallas; Rev. William Cusick, pastor of the Gate of Heaven Church of Dallas; Rev. John Prater, pastor of the Prince of Peace Episcopal Church of Dallas; and Rev. Andrew Pillarella, pastor of the Dallas Presbyterian Church.

Service clubs, institutions and church organizations are requested to send nominations to the community service award committee. The award will be presented on Sept. 27 at 7:30 p.m. at an informal dinner to be held at Irem Temple Country.
