His hobby really is for the birds

By WALLY KOCHER
Staff Correspondent

If anyone were to ever talk to Bruce Davies, of Dallas, about his favorite avocation, they might think it was strictly for the birds. That wouldn't mean however, that they think his hobby is ridiculous, for Davies' hobby really is for the birds. He's a bird watcher.

Davies has been interested in bird watching for the past 15 years, but didn't get too serious about it until after he retired six years ago.

Along with his wife, Irene, Davies has traveled extensively to "support his habit." They have gone to the swamp land of Florida, Colorado and even to the Rio Grande River in Texas.

Davies admits that some people can't understand why he and his wife would travel so far with no other thought in mind than bird watching. He explained just why they do it.

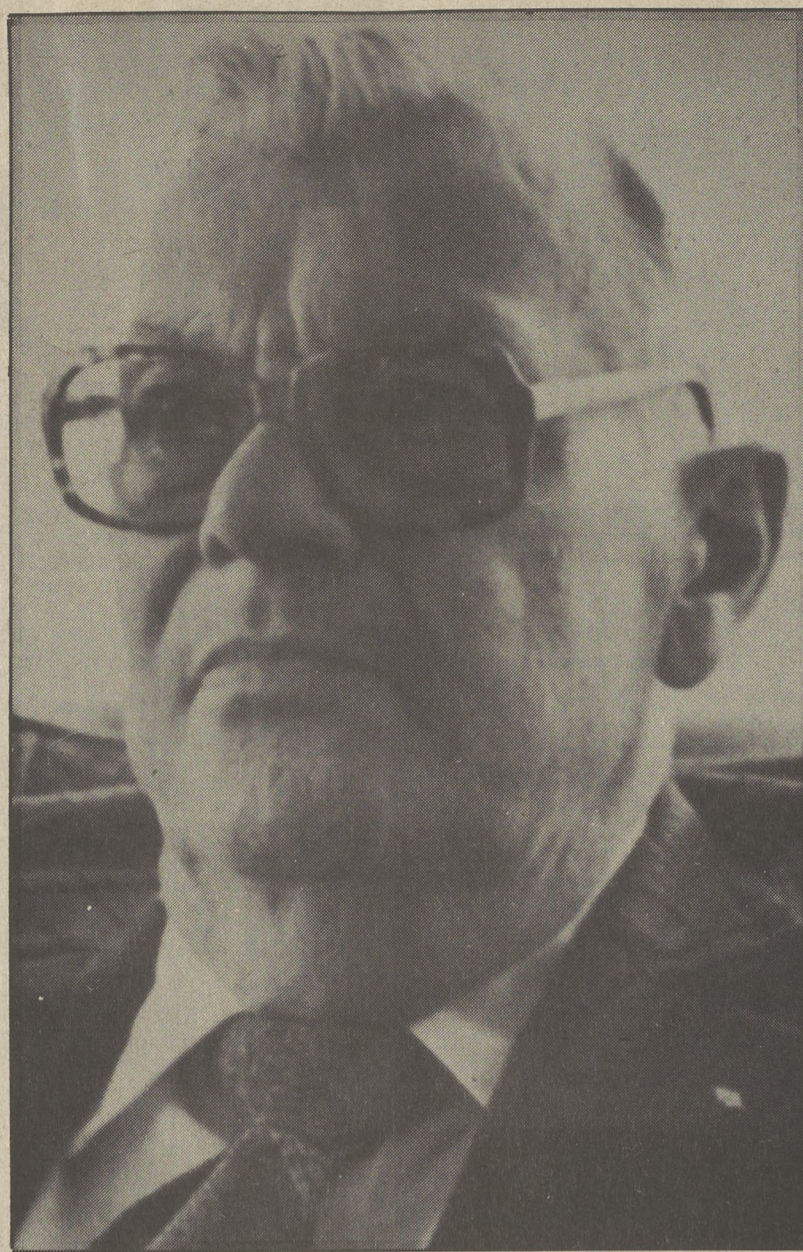

"You have to go to other parts of the country, or the world for that matter, to see certain birds. When we wanted to see storks or white pelicans, we had to go to Florida. You just can't seem them around here."

Davies is also a Board Member of the Wyoming Valley Audubon Society. The society meets once a month every third Monday of the month. During the meetings, they either have a guest speaker or one of the members shows slides.

Mr. Davies has culminated a nice collection of his own slides.

"I like to photograph the birds I see," said Davies. "I've kept a record of all the species of birds I've seen in the last three years, and they've added up to 150 or 200 species. I have most of these on my slides."

Even though Davies takes along a camera on his journeys, he pointed out that not all bird watchers have to buy expensive equipment. There are certain items, however, that every bird watcher should have.

BRUCE DAVIES

"All bird watchers should at least have a notebook in which to record sightings, binoculars or a telescope, and some type of field guide, which identifies the different types of birds."

"Bird watching has more than one benefit to it," exclaimed Davies. "Anyone who just enjoys getting out in the woods or walking nature trails would go for bird watching."

Lehman completes Asbestos Survey

The Lake-Lehman School District has recently completed its Asbestos Survey. Both Bulk Sampling and Air Monitoring tests were conducted throughout each structure in the School District. Bulk Analysis was done by the use of x-ray diffraction and the Air Samples were analyzed through "Electron Microscopy." These testing procedures exceed the testing procedures recommended by the Environmental Protection Agency and are the best testing procedures presently available.

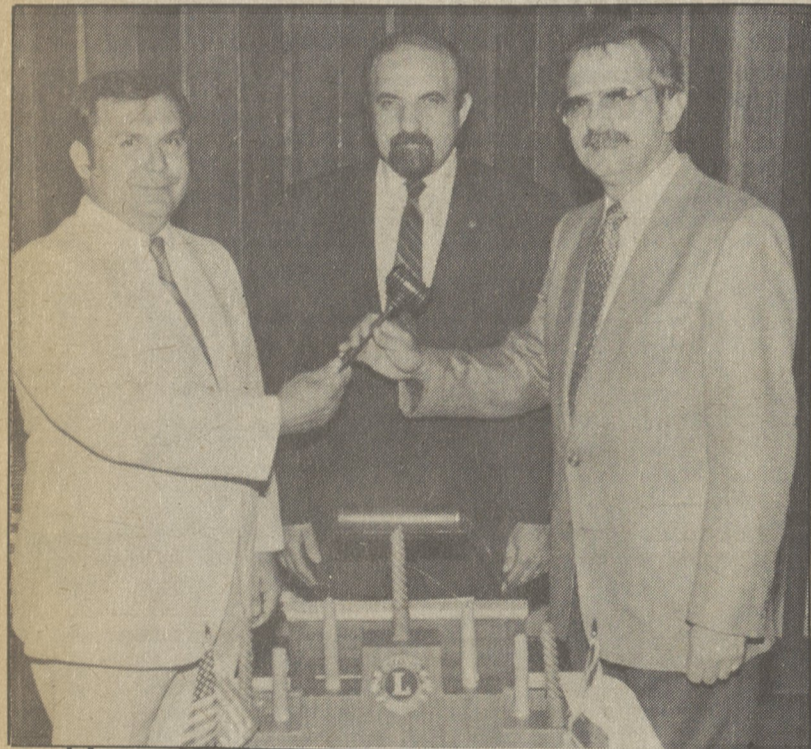

Three schools within the District were found to contain Asbestos Materials and they are: Lake-

Lehman Senior High, Lake-Lehman Junior High and the Ross Township Elementary School. Some 19 eight-hour air tests were taken within these three structures and 17 of the 19 showed absolutely NO TRACES of asbestos fiber. The two air samples that detected fibers were taken in the Boiler Room of the Junior High School and the Boiler Room at the Ross Township Elementary. Results of these two tests were far below the standards of E.P.A., in fact, they were about 1200 times below the critical EPA standards.

The Environmental Protection Agency recommends that the following statement be incorporated into all notifications of asbestos inspection results. (Reference document is the Federal Register (47 FR 23360) May, 1982. "It is important to note that not all friable asbestos containing material need be removed from schools. Once such material has been identified, a program can be implemented to ensure that the materials is maintained in good condition and that appropriate precautions are followed when the material is disturbed for any reason."

The Lake-Lehman School District is presently reviewing procedures for the removal of materials which contain asbestos in all areas where the possibility of hazzard exists. This is being done to minimize the risk of asbestos fiber release in the Lake-Lehman School District.
