

Door prizes awarded

Mary Radzville wins color TV

The 1984 Homemakers School, sponsored by The Dallas Post, was highlighted with the awarding of a 13" color television set, donated by The Dallas Post. Imagine the shock and surprise on the face of Mary Radzville, of Pittston, when her name was called as the grand prize winner.

The evening was filled with the awarding of several door prizes, compliments of area businesses. Those prizes included:

Maltby Drug Store, Swoyersville, gift certificate; Hoof 'N Paw, Fernbrook, gift certificate for jeans; Bingo's Market, Swoyersville, two hoagies; Jamie's Ice Cream, Forty Fort, gift certificate; Hillside Farm Dairy Store, Trucksville, five quart container of ice cream; Carol Carroll's Beauty Salon, Dallas, two $8 gift certificates; Weis market, Dallas, $10 gift certificate; Back Mountain Lumber, Shavertown, gift certificate.

Also, Bargain Bakers, Dallas, $10 gift certificate; Dallas Photo Shop, Dallas, gift certificate; Fino's Pharmacy, Dallas, gift certificates; Sew Rite, Dallas, $15 gift certificate; Gino's Shoe Store, Dallas, two gift certificates and 1 leather purse; Sew Fine, Kingston, $50 merchandise credit; Pickett's Charge, Dallas, two prime rib dinners; DiVeronica's Grocery Store, Harveys Lake, five Littory tickets; Coscia's Catering and Restaurant, Dallas, $50 gift certificate.

Also, Jedidia's Diner, Dallas, $10 gift certificate; Grotto Pizza, Harveys Lake, large pizza, T-shirt, Grotto hat; Nemetz Bakery, Swoyersville, gift certificate; Faron's Seafood, Swoyersville, gift certificate; Frury's Deli, Harveys Lake, four trays of pastries; Hilbert's Equipment and Welding, Dallas, 16" chain for chain saw; Mary Taylor's Hair and Skin Care Centers, Trucksville, Dallas and Kingston, three makeup kits and a $60 hair dryer.

Taft's Market, Sandy Beach, Corning glassware; Kern Brothers, Dallas, case of soda; Hill the Florist, Shavertown, floral arrangement; Ron's Floral and Gift, Plains, planter; Granny Annie's, Shavertown, eyelet pillow; Country Carousel, Dallas, pillow; Melba's Fashion Nook, Trucksville, two gift certificates; Katyl TV and Appliances, Shavertown, Corning glassware; Mr. hardware, Inc., Forty fort, gift certificate; Dallas Cleaners, Dallas, two gift certificates; Dymond's

Farm Market, Dallas, two pies; Daring's Market, Dallas, groceries; Keystone coca-cola Bottling Co., Pittston, five cases Coke; DeLeur Masonry, Dallas, chimney cap; Middleswarth Potato Chips, Larksville, small bags chips; Pepsi-Cola Co., Wilkes-barre, free Pepsi; Stapinski Drug Store, Dallas, bowl set.

Also, IGA, Dallas, basket of groceries; Humphrey's Apparel, Shavertown, two children's travel bags; Humphrey's Shoe Store, Shavertown, leather purse; Oscar Roth Jewelry, Dallas, hurricane lamp; Thomas Produce, Dallas, basket of produce; Brittany House, Trucksville, bottle of wine; Nails Beautiful, Edwardsville, free suntan, free nail sculpture; KG's Restaurant, Harveys Lake, German cookies; The Dallas Post, Dallas, 13-inch color TV.

The Dallas Post would also like to acknowledge Katyl's TV and Appliances for the use of a refrigerator, a microwave oven and two conventional ovens, Ray Conrad Electrician for providing all the electrical wiring necessary to conduct the show and College Misericordia for the use of Merrick Hall and its kitchen.

Dallas Post/Ed Campbell

Grand prize winner

Mary Radzville, above center, of Pittston, was both shocked and thrilled when her name was drawn as the winner of a 13" color television set. The TV, which was the grand prize of the evening, was donated by The Dallas Post and was the height of the door prize presentations. Shown here presenting Mary with her grand prize are Dotty Martin, left, editor of The Dallas Post, and Jean Brutko, right, circulation manager of The Dallas Post.

Dallas Post/Charlot M. Denmon

Providing the juice

Ray Conrad Electrician donated all the electrical work necessary for the Homemakers School. Here, Mike Truchon, an employee of Ray Conrad, makes some last minute adjustments.

Dallas Post/Dotty Martin

Checking the recipes

Agnes Gashi, left, of Carverton, and Betty Heist, right, also of Carverton, read over some of the recipes presented at the 1984 Homemakers School prior to the beginning of the show. All those who attended were given a copy of the September 12 issue of The Dallas Post which contained a special section on the Homemakers School.

Door prizes awarded

Dallas Post/Ed Campbell

Packing up

Fran Ragusa, left, of Kingston, and Joan Kingsbury, of The Dallas Post staff, prepare to pack up the food that was made during the Homemakers School. All the food prepared by Home Economist Diane Gryger during the show was given away as door prizes.

Dallas Post/Ed Campbell

Men can cook, too

Ray Klein was one of the few men who attended the Homemakers School and he was lucky enough to win a door prize, too. Here, Ray accepts his prize from Megan Sheehan.

Dallas Post/Ed Campbell

Concentration

Each member of the audience was given a Homemakers 1984 Cookbook that allowed them to follow the Home Economist throughout the show. Here, a group of women watches closely as one of the recipes is prepared on stage.

Dallas Post/Ed Campbell

Mixing the batter

Home Economist Diane Gryger, left, and one of her helpers, Fran Ragusa, work onstage during the 1984 Homemakers School. Bright lights and three larger mirrors made it possible for everyone in the audience to watch how Diane prepared all the food.

Dallas Post/Ed Campbell

Leading a cheer

Mistress of ceremonies Debbie Zurinski leads the audience in a cheer, spelling out the words "The Dallas Post" as those who attended the Homemakers School thanked the school's sponsors for an evening filled with fun.

Dallas Post/Ed Campbell

Grocery winner

Mrs. Palata of Lehman was one of the lucky winners of 20 grocery bags that were donated by Coca-Cola, Daring's Market and Homemakers, Inc.

Dallas Post/Dotty Martin

Meeting friends

The Dallas Post Homemakers School was a great night out and a chance for a lot of people to see some people they haven't seen in a while. Here, Edith Shupp, left, of Dallas, and Carrie Phillips, also of Dallas, chat a little before the show starts.

Dallas Post/Charlot M. Denmon

Discussing the menu

Home Economist Diane Gryger, second from right, discusses the evening's menu with her assistants. From left, Laura Martin, Forty Fort; Joan Kingsbury, Dallas; and Fran Ragusa, Kingston.