Open House held

The home of Dr. and Mrs. Wallace F. Stettler at Wyoming Seminary was the setting for a pre-Christmas open house recently for trustees, faculty members, students and friends of the school. More than 200 guests enjoyed the homelike Christmas atmosphere portrayed by burning candles and holiday greens throughout the house. In the photo above trustees and faculty representatives include, from left, seated, Mrs. Richard Maslow, Dallas, trustee representative; Mrs. David Davies, Kingston; and Mrs. Mary Catherine Shedlawski, Forty Fort, faculty, Lower School. Standing from left, are Mr. Richard Maslow, Dallas; Mrs. Wallace F. Stettler, Kingston; Dr. Wallace F. Stettler, president; Mr. David Davies, Kingston, dean of students; and Mr. Harry Nageli, Kingston, faculty, Upper School.

Project completed

Forty-nine students representing four classes at Wyoming Seminary College Preparatory School recently participated in an annual contest to sell Christmas Wrap paper as part of the American Cancer Society's annual Christmas Wrap Project. A grant total of 1546 rolls of Christmas Wrap were sold by the students, raising $5,068 for the Cancer Society's Wyoming Valley Unit. Winners of the contest were Leslie Maslow, Dallas, selling 353 rolls; Melissa Gaudio, Kingston, 300 rolls; Kory Lyn Menn, West Pittston, 58 rolls; and John Evans, Dallas, 49 rolls. Shown in the photo from left are John Evans, Mrs. Frances Nork, project chairman, Melisa Gaudio, Leslie Maslow, and Dr. Wallace F. Stettler, president, Wyoming Seminary.
