BARBARA DAVIS, Penn State Extension specialist in adult development and aging, has prepared a new, six-part learn-at-home series called "Celebrate Your Family Across Generations" now available at the Luzerne County Cooperative Extension Service Office.

The series is designed to help adults find ways to build a better understanding and appreciation for other adults in their immediate and extended families.

Differing political views, differing lifestyles, and individual ways of coping with life and death situations are often difficult for one generation to understand about another. Yet the rewards of keeping family ties open and strong are well worth the

Your family is a group you belong to for your entire life. As years pass, parents and adult children important and sometimes unexpected parts in each other's lives. The better you understand each other, the better your support will be in times of crisis and the more you will have to share in times of celebration.

Keeping in touch and sharing information are the keys to successful intergenerational relations. The "Celebrate Your Family Across Generations" learn-at-home series offers advice and suggestions on facing hard times, what to do when you disagree on important matters, how to celebrate special times, coping with birth and death, ideas for keeping in touch, and on men in Discussing these with your family will help you build your family ties. Call Luzerne County Cooperative Extension Service for the series at 825-1701 or 459-0736, ext. 701, or write, Courthouse Annex, 5 Water St., Wilkes-Barre, PA 18711.

Exhibits

THE WYOMING VALLEY CAMERA CLUB is currently sponsoring an exhibit of members works on the campus of Wyoming Seminary in the Gallery of the Stettler Learning Resources Center, Sprague Avenue in Kingston.

The showing will be open to the public on weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. from now until April 3. Persons who are interested in becoming members of the Wyoming Valley Camera Club can pick up information at the exhibit.

A TRAINING SESSION for volunteers to teach "Fresh Start", a stopsmoking clinic sponsored by the American Cancer Society, will be held at the Kirby Health Center on February 21 at 7 p.m.

According to the American Cancer Society, the best teachers are former smokers. Essential information and strategies needed to help people quit smoking will be taught at the one-hour session.
