This competition is for students, grades K-12, who are identified as specially gifted or creative. The youngsters will be competing in problem solving of two varieties: long-term problems which they were given and have been working upon for months, and spontaneous problems which are given at the Olympics. The students will be grouped according to age at the competition and will be judged on the answers given and the style used in the problem solving. If the students do well at Lake-Lehman, they may advance to higher levels, finally achieving national competition.
