EDCNP has publications available

Sanburn Sutherland, President of the Economic Development Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania (EDCNP) announced today that a series of new publications have been issued by the Council. He noted that "These publications are a series of Regional Action Program Bulletins which the Council has issued since 1972. The newest publications are designed to help citizens and officials of Northeastern Pennsylvania understand major regional issues and-or provide information of significant importance to enable the public and private sectors to have factual data with which to make decisions."

Howard J. Grossman, Executive Director of the Economic Development Council noted that "These publications have been widely received in the past and used extensively by organizations and individuals in the Pocono Northeast. The Council will continue to issue these periodic bulletins as a significant way to inform the public."

The publications which are available include the following:

1. Local Economic Development Revitalization Tax Assistance Act Helps Business Improvements
2. Aviation Development Loan Program Administered by Pennsylvania Department of Transportation
3. Right to Know Act Impacts Northeastern Pennsylvania Business and Industrial Community
4. Community Development Block Grant Entitlement Program for Non-Urban Counties and Certain Other Municipalities Signed by Governor Thornburgh
5. Foreign Sales Corporation Act Provides New Export Tax Incentives

Copies of these publications may be secured by writing the Economic Development Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania, 1151 Oak Street, Pittston, Pa. 18640-3795.

Women

learn to speak candidly and decisively to your supervisors," said Karen.

In her position, Karen also conducts seminars. Recently, she coordinated the African Famine Relief program and the United Way Drive for the First Eastern Bank.

Karen received her Associate Degree in Business Administration from King's College and is now studying for her Bachelor of Science Degree in Business Administration which she expects to receive in May, 1986.

Karen noted that four of the members of the personnel staff at the bank are women and the bank's recent merger with the Scranton National Bank brings the total number of women in personnel to five. Karen spends most of her time outside of her working hours studying or reading literature pertaining to the banking business or to her school work. "In order to be successful at both, it keeps me busy," said Karen. "If I have any leisure time, I enjoy spending it with my family. We are a close family and enjoy getting together when we can."

Karen is secretary to the Vocational Advisory Board of Dallas High School and a member of the American Institute of Banking.

"That's all I have time for, at the present," she said. "When I have received my degree, I hope to become more involved in other activities."

Food

buying lunches.

Ehret claims she has tried to institute new ways to sell the lunches, meeting with students to plan menus, having a la carte specialties, but none has raised the lunch count over half the school population.

A number of students were asked why they were not purchasing lunches in the cafeteria. The answers ranged from dislike of the food (no flavor, said many)...to it's the same stuff over and over again...we'd like to have something new."

effectively solved its budget problems, that figure would have remained the same. The figure has increased, however, despite A.R.A. making a profit in the last two years.

Apparently A.R.A. saw no better way to balance the budget than to cut employees' hours. Food costs are kept to a minimum, as A.R.A. buys wholesale and receives government commodities. Asked if the budget could be amended with more students buying lunch, Vidlicka agreed.

The "better news" is Cindy Rogers, Ehret's replacement.

Cindy has been working for the Scranton School District under A.R.A. since March of 1983. She lives at 1705 Tall Trees Ave., in Dunmore, with her husband, Kevin.

Rogers admits to being a little surprised at the sudden promotion, but former Supervisor Kathleen Clemente believes she'll do wonderfully.

"Cindy is very capable and I'm certain she'll carry on Mary's good programs," says Clemente. Rogers received her dieticians degree from Marywood College and is currently taking graduate courses at Wilkes College.

Mead, at one point, suggested that perhaps making the food more attractive might appeal to the students more.

Considering the problems in the cafeteria, Vidlicka maintains that A.R.A. will only get another contract if more children are eating lunch. The aim, she says, is to break even and assure each child a good, hot meal.

When A.R.A. began working for the district, there was an $80,000 debt built up over the years when the school district ran the cafeteria. According to the figures, this amount has increased. Had A.R.A.

Barre Campus and the relatively high salaries offered graduates with associate degrees. Salary range for two year graduates in electrical engineering technology is from $12,700 to $24,000.

The proposed Center will include a teleconference room with a satellite hookup to enable Penn State to present numerous experts to members of the community, a technological clearing house with an electronic library information system allowing access to volumes on all of the Penn State campuses, public libraries and the Library of Congress.

Demonstrations of robots, computers, and other electrical, digital, automated, biomedical equipment will be available through the living-learning resource laboratory, proposed for use as a community resource to give students and adults a clear understanding of technology.

The local campus offers the first two years of more than 120 baccalaureate degrees, including engineering. Dr. Ryan indicated that one out of every 10 engineers in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is a Penn State graduate.

The Wilkes-Barre Campus is cooperating with Wilkes College to determine local interest in a Masters of Engineering degree and Penn State may work with Wilkes in developing such a program. The local campus officials are also considering a Bachelor of Technology degree because of requests from local industry and from persons with two year degrees.

Dr. Ryan also announced that a student housing development to be built by a private developer, adjacent to the campus, should be ready for occupancy by the Fall of 1985.

New modular classrooms, at an approximate cost of $300,000, will be erected on the campus this summer by Pennsylvania State University for use in the Fall.

Displays wares

Mrs. Betty Reese de Barry of Oakhill, Dallas, displays just a few of the crafts she will be have available for purchase during "A Little Bit of Everything." The event is a flea market and bazaar sponsored by the Dallas High School Soccer Club in an effort to raise money to be used towards a trip to Scotland for the high school soccer team.

Dallas Soccer Club plans flea market

On April 20, the Dallas High School Soccer Club will sponsor a flea market and bazaar of "A Little Bit of Everything." Local artists, craftsmen, small businesses and people with "attic treasures" to sell will participate. From 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. shoppers and collectors can browse and buy unhampered by weather conditions or parking concerns.

Venturing into the open market will be Mrs. Betty Reese de Barry of Oak Hill. Mrs. de Barry, mother of three grown children, now has time to make and sell her macramé and jute wreaths and wicker plaques. She also will be offering at the bazaar her homemade salad dressing, barbeque sauce and candies. Shoppers with a taste for sweets will enjoy Mrs. de Barry's varieties of fudge and her molded candies in assorted flavors. An energetic woman, Mrs. de Barry also plans to bring flea market items from her cellar and attic. Of special interest should be her Free Spirit bicycle ridden only twice.

Members of the community are invited to help make this project a success either by participating as dealers or by browsing and buying. Proceeds of this event will be used towards a trip to Scotland for the High School Soccer Team in 1986. Team members will be present to help dealers and customers. For more information call 675-4566 or 696-1437. A table registration form can be picked up at the Back Mountain Lumber and Hardware Store in Shavertown.
