Richard went from studying accounting to studying mixology and, along with tending to the lounge, makes a debonair maitre'd. One of his specialty drinks is known as the "creamsicle" which is made with galiano, cream, triple sec and orange juice and tastes as icy and refreshing as its namesake.

So refreshing is the simplicity of atmosphere at Nonno Lini's. One is instantly reminded of the village pasta houses of Rome, with their thatched trelisses heavy with red and white concord grapes

The mood is low key and soft with salmon and apricot slipping into an ivory background. Red and peach carnations with tiny pink roses are perfect foils for the Ivory table settings. Subduing the scene further are opaque glass chandeliers in blue green and gold whose gold-etched Dogwood blossoms shimmer delicately above the main diningoom. Booths and tables are plentiful and comfortable and are surrounded by a black maple trim that highlights the leather seatings. It is a quiet, romantic ambiance; complete with soft music and soothing waters which flow fom a central stone fountain.

North Italiana cuisine is characterized by an abundance of choice. It differs from a strictly Roman menu in that, owing to the herding peoples of its terrain, one typically finds more in the way of meats, especially chicken and veal, along with Southern Italy's customary pasta and seafood. Veal is a specialty; often prepared with goat cheeses and seasoned with a light hand, it comes steeped in the more aromatic of Italian wines.

Such a dish is Veal Saltimbocca; one of many veal dishes created by Mary Theresa; remaining true to the Lini legacy, she uses only the freshest of legs for her dinners. The dish features a wonderfully tender veal steak with proscuitto served on a bed of fresh spinach, while mushrooms grace the mellow white sauce that hints of onion and chablis. A flavorful accompaniment to the entree is Nonno Lini's special antipasto. The salami, pepperoni, provolone and olives prove not only to be a formidable companion for the Saltimbocca, but the bevy of colors and textures add visual "spice" to the table.

Seafood Diavolos and pasta in all shapes and sizes (even the whole wheat pasta is homemade) are continual favorites; as is Mary Theresa's Chicken Alfredo. Homemade soups are piquant, but never overly-spiced. In fact, Mary Theresa will prepare any dish to the personal seasoning tastes of her patrons. (À little more garlic, perhaps?

But, let the calorie counter beware! Nonno Lini's is not the place to diet, especially towards meal's end when, along with your cappucino or espresso, arrives a sizeable pastry cart with mousses, Napoleons, filled pastries and other Italian confections prepared to perfection by Richard's mother.

Especially inviting is the Triple Chocolate Torte, which boasts three distinct chocolate flavors in one creation; a rich, caravan chocolate cake infused with Mandarin fudge and iced in semi-sweet chocolate. Nonno Lini's serves a true souffle mouse and is one of the few restaurants around to offer its own homemade cheesecake. A family favorite is the chocolate-peanut butter cheesecake.

Nonno Lini's wine lists consists of stable and imported varieties and is ever-growing. Private party dining can be provided in an Italian setting complete with stucco'd walls and brick archways. Nonno Lini's caters in its restaurant, for any occasion and anyone interested is asked to call for further information.

Nonno Lini's is open Tuesday through Thursday, 4 p.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday 4 p.m. to midnight. From 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Sunday, there is a special family style dinner; from 4 p.m. to 11 p.m. the regular menu is featured. Tuesday and Thursday nights are "all you can eat" pasta nights. Piano entertainment is provided on the weekends. Reservations are always best. Phone 825-4299.
