Journey to 'The Brook' is well worth the trip

By PAMELA AARON
 Staff Correspondent

If you journey to "The Brook" Restaurant on Route 6 in Tunkhannock, try and schedule your trip at dusk; when twilight begins to obscure the tensions of a hectic life.

You'll find the highway of your approach slowly weaving itself into a lazy, winding road that takes you further and further away from the hustle and bustle of the city, into the beautifully mysterious domain of the Endless Mountains. They do, indeed, seem to continue on endlessly; rising out of the green-gray shadows into an orange-pink sunset, providing the sloping boundaries of what appears to be a colorful passageway into a magical frontier.

In time, the red, waving sun falls fast into the earth and endless number of stars seem to levitate from the mountains to the heavens. The quiet, interrupted only by crickets, is soothing. On a solitary byway, there is nothing to disturb the peace. When first glimpsed from a distant elevation, the hideaway could pass for a circular space ship; its flickering lights tapping out signals to extra-terrestrials. Distant red TV receptors appear to be suspended in mid air; moving
