Edwardsville man charged

By JUDIE MATHERS
Staff Writer

At a preliminary hearing held before District Magistrate Leonard Harvey, Owen Davis, 26, of 126 Short Street, Edwardsville, was charged with the burglaries of four Back Mountain residences.

The charges, which were filed against Davis by Dallas Borough Police Chief Ed Lyons, include two counts of burglary, two counts of receiving stolen property and one count of criminal conspiracy.

These stem from incidents which occurred at the homes of James B. Post, Highland Blvd., Dallas, on December 11, 1984 and Marion Kunigonis, Reservoir Rd., Dallas on January 7, 1985. According to Chief Lyons, items taken in the thefts include jewelry, silver and valuable papers valued at a total of over $20,000.

Lehman Township patrolman Dennis Dobnick also filed similar charges against the Edwardsville man. These include burglary, criminal trespassing, and theft by unlawful taking.

The Lehman Township homes involved were the residences of Royal Culp, Huntsville Rd., on January 9, 1985 and Gerald Clark, Route 118 on December 23, 1984. In both cases, valuable including jewelry, silver and guns were taken.

A Prima Facie case was established and Davis was remanded to the Luzerne County Prison to await trial by a Luzerne County Court on a date to be announced.

An accomplice, Kenneth Moran of 7 Pugh St., Edwardsville, was arraigned before Magistrate Harvey on April 11, and a preliminary hearing date was scheduled for Wednesday, April 17.

Program initiated

A national award-winning educational program to safeguard the lives of children will be initiated in public schools in Pennsylvania.

REALTOR members of the Pennsylvania Association of REALTORS have purchased "Safety Through Songs" kits for an estimated 312,000 children enrolled in kindergarten and first grade classes in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

On a statewide basis, the REALTORS will spend a vast amount of money to bring the program to about 312,000 students.

The innovative audio-visual program received the nation's top award in competition with more than 1,700 REALTOR Boards throughout the United States from the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS "Make America Better" contest.

The program, which uses a coloring book with songs, a record and a filmstrip, has been endorsed and commended by Governor Thornburgh for helping provide much-needed health and safety education.

"Each child receives a record and coloring book with the words and music to the safety songs," explained Mike Bernardo, Executive Vice-President of the Pennsylvania Association of REALTORS. "In areas where the program has already been introduced, teachers and parents said the children learned the safety songs by heart."

This is National Boys Club Week

President Ronald Reagan has proclaimed April 14-20 as National Boys Club Week. This year celebrates 125 years of Boys Club service to youngsters, particularly those from disadvantaged backgrounds. Since 1860, Boys Clubs have provided young people with a place where they can help themselves to become contributing members of society.

In issuing this proclamation, the President stated: "The future of our nation will be shaped by today's younger generation. Young people must have both skill and motivation to succeed as adults and contribute toward continued social progress for all. The trained professionals and caring volunteers in Boys Clubs guide young people to identify their talents and gain the self-confidence to apply them."

Joining the President, who serves as Honorary Chairman of Boys Clubs of America, in the week-long celebration will be more than 1.2 million young people in 1,100 clubs throughout the country, and the thousands of dedicated staff and volunteers who serve them.

Boys Clubs--"the Clubs that beat the streets"--offer programs in health and fitness, juvenile delinquency prevention, youth employment, citizenship and leadership development, drug and alcohol abuse prevention, and education for family life. Boys Club Alumni include famous Americans from all walks of life: Speaker of the House Thomas P. O'Neill, CBS News Anchor Dan Rather, playwright Jason Miller, Melville Corporation Chairman Francis C. Rooney, C.J. Silas, president of Phillips Petroleum Company and many entertainers and sports figures.

Although Boys Clubs are 125 years old, their programs are as contemporary as today's headlines. In recent years, Boys Clubs of America has led efforts nationwide to educate parents and children about child sexual abuse, teenagers on the dangers of drug abuse and drunk driving and communities on the need for protecting children's rights.

National Boys Club Week is an opportune time for every American to join the President in saluting the outstanding services performed by Boys Clubs.
