HILLSIDE PERSONAL CARE

By PAMELA AARON
Staff Correspondent

"I had heard about it and thought I'd like to give it a try," said Bethlehem born Phyllis Rohrback, about the newly acquired Hillside Personal Care. "And I'm glad I did - I just love it," she exclaimed.

Phyllis pauses to wave back to two women in the dining room who are chatting over coffee and then stoops to return a warm hug to resident "Mary" before she continues.

"She (Mary) had been frail and hardly participated in activities," Phyllis says after Mary leaves. "Almost like she was waiting to die," added Eleanor, the resident representative, sadly. The look of compassion and patience is evident in Eleanor's blue-grey eyes when she says, "Little by little with effort and plenty of TLC, Mary has come around."

"I think the two major concepts we promote here at Hillside are support (there's plenty of hugging here)," laughs Ms. Rohrback and also the way we encourage our people to get involved."

Personal care differs from intermediate or skilled care in that residents are basically autonomous.

"It is a group-living arrangement rather than a hospital setting," says Phyllis "We are not a nursing home!" she says emphatically.

Residents are free to come and go as they please, though they let us know their whereabouts. There are no curfews nor any limitations on visitors or activities and we are there to assist when needed. Projects and activities that foster independence keep people interested and alive and involved in life.

And such activities abound at Hillside. Along with church groups, bingo games and card parties, scheduled group activities and social functions, Hillside residents enjoy their own library, musical entertainment and films. A project currently at the planning stages is Hillside's flower and vegetable garden.

Residents enjoy private and semi-private dwellings that resemble efficiency apartments, complete with furniture and bath. Any furniture or other belongings someone wishes to bring are always welcome, says the staff. A resident physician is on call every two weeks and physical therapy and other medical specialties such as podiatry are available to anyone who needs them.

A beautician comes directly to Hillside to service its residents. Recreational activities are also stressed for mental as well as physical health. There are two lounges with TVs, a pool table and plenty of walking space in a pretty country setting. Ms. Rohrback plans to add covered walkways and shuffleboard courts to her list of upcoming improvements.

Arlene Campbell, resident chef, is known for her tasty recipes that are enjoyed in the group setting of a central dining room.

Hillside is a place where one can make friends, seek out stimulating activities and hobbies and do just about anything in a friendly atmosphere of independent living while also being assured that help, support and lot's of "hugs" are available right outside your doorstep...any time you need them. Ms. Rohrback always emphasizes the fact that the coffee pot is always on and snacks are always available to anyone who wishes to stop in and say hello.

Bank merger approved

Richard F. Laux, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of United Penn Bank and Roy T. Peraino, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Continental Bancorp, Inc. announce that the FDIC approved a merger of Security Bank and Trust Company of Stroudsburg with and into United Penn Bank. United Penn is a subsidiary of Continental Bancorp, Philadelphia.

The merger had previously been approved by the shareholders of Security Bank and the Pennsylvania Department of Banking. Following a 30-day statutory waiting period, the proposed merger may proceed.

Correction

In the May 8 edition of The Dallas Post, it was inadvertently reported that Darren Ide is the son of Roland Ide when, in fact, he is the son of Roland and Audrey Ide. Mr. Ide was formerly employed as a police officer for Lehman Township and did not serve as police chief as was reported earlier.

Hotline installed

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture today announced the installation of a toll-free 800 number for use by the public in seeking help with agriculture-related problems and concerns.

The hotline number is 1-800-AG-PENNA (247-3662).

Acting Secretary of Agriculture George F. Grode noted that the Department has a great variety of responsibilities relating to agriculture, food and consumer protection and that 800-AG-PENNA can be used to get help with problems as diverse as: amusement rides, animal health, dog laws, export sales, family farm development program, farmland preservation, farm marketing problems, food problems, lawn seed problems, pesticide use, plant diseases, plant pests, rabies, questions on weights and measures, and the wide range of services provided by the Department.

JOHN MILIAUSKAS

Lehman Band Director receives special honor

John Miliuskas, Director of the Lake-Lehman Band and Chairman of the Fine Arts Department of Lake-Lehman School, has been a music educator for many years and has had many honors bestowed upon him.

However, at a State Pennsylvania Music Educators Association Conference held on April 27 at Lancaster, Mr. Miliuskas received an honor attained by only a select group of music educators.

On April 27, Mr. Miliuskas was inducted into the Phi Beta Mu Fraternity. This Fraternity is comprised of an elite group of music educators consisting mainly of university educators and a few high school educators.

To gain admittance into this Fraternity, a candidate must be nominated by three members. All members vote on the nomination and all votes must be unanimous in order to gain admittance. To date, there are only 45 members in the Fraternity in Pennsylvania.

The Fraternity commended Mr. Miliuskas on his continued successful music program and his contributions to other music educators.

At the State Convention, Mr. Miliuskas was also honored for his more than 25 years of service to music education.
