

Donation made

Dallas Rotary Club has donated $2000 to the Easter Seals Society for the care of crippled children. The money was raised with a "basketball shootout" at Dallas and Lake-Lehman schools last March. Bob Barna of Dallas, was the champion of the event and won a trip to Philadelphia to meet "Dr. J." Erving of the Philadelphia 76ers. In the accompanying photograph, Jeff Townsend, left, and Bob Bayer, right, both of Dallas Rotary, are presenting a check to Jim Alexander, representing the Easter Seals Society.

Grossman on economics

Rising insurance costs prohibit development

By HOWARD J. GROSSMAN
Special to The Dallas Post

A new problem has risen to prevent economic development from reaching higher levels of activity in Northeastern Pennsylvania. Within recent months, a rising tide of sharply increasing insurance costs for fire, liability, and product liability have caused many businesses and industries to become concerned over the high cost of doing business.

These costs have been sharply focused on many types of businesses and industries including the resort industry which must rely on insurance as a basis for continuing their operations. In fact, the problem has reached a stage in which a few resort owners have suggested that unless it is resolved, they will be unable to continue their operations.

The problem arises not only from sharply increased costs, but cancellation of policies and the inability to replace these insurance policies with alternatives. In some cases, it is reported that costs have risen 300 to 400 percent or more in a relatively short period of time.

How to come to grips with this new dilemma is being evaluated by many local chambers of commerce as well as the Economic Development Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania (EDCNP). At a recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the Economic Development Council, several board members reported on the cost of such conditions which have been thrust upon the business community.

Insurance costs have vitally impacted the professional, business, and industrial community of Northeastern Pennsylvania and elsewhere. If the current crisis is allowed to unravel further, jobs may be lost and new economic development opportunities may be missed. The Economic Development Council has pledged itself to examine the full ramifications of the

DISTRICT COURT REPORT

A Philadelphia resident currently serving a three and half to seven year prison term for retail theft at the State Correctional Institution as Dallas (SCID) will face a charge of 'escape' after violating a prison furlough agreement, District Justice Leonard Harvey said Monday.

SCID inmate Charles Williams, 36 of Philadelphia waived his arraignment hearing Monday before Harvey and will face escape charges before Luzerne County court.

Williams allegedly was released on April 8, 1985 and was scheduled to return to SCID on April 12, 1985 according to the terms of a "Home Furlough Agreement" utilized by the prison. Williams did not return on the 12th and was later pick-up by police in Philadelphia on May 30.

Williams is expected to have 'extra time' added to his sentence, Harvey said Monday. However, with plea bargaining, Harvey said, you never really know.

Tom Figmik, press relations officer at SCID said Monday that the Home Furlough Agreement program has been used by the prison since 1968 and that is has shown a 95 to 98 percent success ratio.

In order for an inmate to be considered for the project he must have completed at least one half of his minimum sentence, have a good institutional record and have the permission of his sentencing judge.

An inmate, Figmik said, must also sign the agreement which prohibits the use of alcohol, drugs, firearms and leaving the specified area to be visited. Violation of the agreement, Figmik said, automatically disqualifies the inmate from further furlough consideration.

problem and to work with all appropriate agencies, both public and private, to determine what courses of action might be best suited for resolving the problem.

The Council has issued a call for information and comments from interested parties as to the problems which any business, profession, or industry is facing with respect to spiraling insurance costs or cancellation of policies.

Contact may be made by writing the Economic Development Council, 1151 Oak Street, Pittston, Pa. 18640 or calling (717) 655-5581.

SUPPORT THOSE THAT ADVERTISE IN THE DALLAS POST

Seniors should schedule photos

William R. Wagner, Dallas Senior High School Yearbook Advisor, reminds the Class of 1986 that appointments for senior portraits must be made with the photographer by September to assure their appearance in the 1986 yearbook. The yearbook staff requires a 2 1/4 x 3 inch black and white glossy for publishing. Mr. Husband will submit the glossies to the school.

The 1985 Dallas yearbook was completed as of June 19 and will be delivered to the school in late August. Notification of its arrival will be made in this publication. Students are asked not to call the school.
