

Scenes of auctions past

The doll booth at the 1960 auction was a big attraction for all ages.

These women look over the goods at one booth during the 1960 auction.

The auction is always a time for relaxing as is seen in this photo from the 1949 affair where people of all ages enjoy a moment's rest.

Books, books, everywhere books! The book booth has always been a big attraction at the auction and was a crowded one during the 1953 auction.

Oops! This woman was certain surprised by the flash of the camera as she works one of the booths at the 1949 election.

The Dallas Post has always played a vital role in the success of the library auction and the event held in 1954 was no exception.
